

WFP International: CSW64 Is Canceled - But Not Entirely

Grace Kellett and Tamara Starr
March 13, 2020

It is with great sadness that we inform you that due to the very real threat of the coronavirus, the 64th session of the UN Commission on the Status of Women (CSW64) was effectively cancelled for all participants. However, CSW is still organizing a series of events to commemorate the 25th anniversary of The Fourth World Conference on Women that took place in Beijing.

Here is a timeline that explains the reasons behind the cancellation, and the series of events that will take place in 2020 as we move forward:

On February 28, the UN Secretary General issued a letter recommending that the 64th annual session of the UN Commission on the Status of Women be scaled back due to concerns regarding the coronavirus. Read the full letter here.

Based upon that recommendation, the Chair of the CSW sent a letter to the Permanent Missions announcing that a briefing would be held on Monday, March 2, to discuss these recommendations. Read the full letter here.

On March 2, the CSW bureau held a briefing for the member states of the Commission and NGOs at the UN to discuss the recommendation sent out by the UN Secretary General's office that CSW64 be scaled down and shortened this year, in light of the global coronavirus emergency. Upon a three hour discussion during which time member states gave their opinions and recommendations, it was decided that CSW64 would be scaled down even further to only include one official meeting related to all procedural matters (adopting the political declaration and other agreed upon resolutions) to be held on Monday, March 9. This was agreed upon contingent on the understanding that efforts would be made to integrate dialogue portions that make up CSW.

Chairperson
Commission on the Status of Women

2 March 2020

Excellencies,

I refer to my letter of Friday, 28 February and have the honor to write in follow up to the informal meeting of the Commission on the Status of Women held this morning, where it was decided that the sixty-fourth session of the Commission will convene on 9 March, at 10.00 a.m. It was agreed that the meeting will be of a procedural nature, with Member States being represented by their Permanent Missions to the United Nations. It will include opening statements by the Chair, the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the President of the General Assembly, the President of the ECOSOC, the President of the Security Council for the month of March, as well as UN Women Executive Director and a representative of civil society, followed by the adoption of the draft Political Declaration and action on any other draft resolutions. There will be no general discussion. The session will then suspend until further notification.

In this regard, the meeting reiterated the Secretary-General's strong recommendation that capital-based delegations and other stakeholders refrain from travelling to UN Headquarters. The meeting recommended that all side events planned by Member States and the UN system in conjunction with CSW64 will be cancelled.

Please accept, Excellencies, the assurances of my highest consideration.
