After a few months of preparation, we are excited to announce the coming of the exhibition of Unjin Moon's works, a total of 50 oil paintings. In her art, Unjin expresses a great sensitivity to nature. Colors and lines are laid on the canvas with beauty and love. Portraits of children and animals are treated in a tender and innocent way. Horses and equestrian competitions are other of her constant topics, and on some of the equestrian canvases, she tries to capture movement by using hints of cubist, futuristic, and even abstract techniques. Landscapes, the greater part of the paintings of this exhibition, takes us into a mysterious and symbolic approach to nature. It is an invitation to feel the light that permeates the natural world. To complete the exhibition, there are some abstract paintings dealing always with a very colorful and positive tonality. Definitely, a stroll through Unjin Moon exhibition makes you realize the beauty of life.

Born in 1967 in South Korea, Un-jin said that "From a young age, horses became an integral part of my life. While attending Hackley prep school in Irvington, New York, I received art awards for elementary, middle, and high school. Upon graduation, I had the opportunity to attend the Seoul Olympics as a show jumping equestrian, and then four years later again in Barcelona, Spain. It was then that I had the opportunity to be the first female captain of the Korean equestrian team. Unfortunately, the team dispersed after the 92 Olympics, and I was left competing individually for Korea. I guaranteed myself a spot in the 96 Olympics in Atlanta by placing second in a qualifying World Cup class in Sweden. Unfortunately, my horse came up with an injury that would make me not be able to compete. It was then that I decided to quit show jumping and focus on my creative pursuits. During these years, I had the chance to delve into my oil painting daily, and I have displayed works at the Hong Kong expo, gallery EOS in Providence, Rhode Island, and other galleries. Three of my pieces are on display at the Sallie B Wheeler Museum in Kentucky, USA".

It was a great joy to receive the painting collection in Madrid after all the usual trouble at the customs. All the paintings are for sale, and after the period in Madrid, they will travel to Espacio Ronda Gallery in Barcelona through the month of June and will end up being exhibited in Espacio Ronda Gallery in Valencia in the month of July.
