

Project Phoenix Workshop in Stuttgart, Germany, 19-20 October

Michael Balcomb
September 18, 2019

Why do people go to church? Many people would say that they go because of the relationships. But how honest and authentic are the relationships in our communities? Would you like to see our communities energized through real communication between the generations? Have you been feeling like your relationships are not as fulfilling as they could be? Are you hoping to find people in your community with whom you can build deeper trust?

If you answered YES to any of these questions, we encourage you to join us at "The Project Phoenix -- Empowering Intergenerational Partnerships."

After hosting a powerful event in Bad Camberg earlier this year, the wish came up to have another Project Phoenix workshop in the south of Germany. We encourage younger and older members from all over Germany and Europe to join the second event held in Stuttgart, put together with a local team and members of the American Project Phoenix staff.

For this project to be valuable, we encourage equal participation of senior and young Unificationists from our communities.

Invitation to Project Phoenix Workshop

Here are some of the key parts of the program:

Being part of a "family" for the length of the program.

Authentic Listening -- "Seek first to understand, then be understood..."

Honouring the Generations -- Learning to respect and appreciate those of different generations

Through our Lens -- Hear authentic testimonies from those who have overcome the relationship challenge.

Authentic Spirituality -- There will be time for reflection and meditation.

If you feel like this workshop is for you, please register here -- we honour your commitment and look forward to learning and growing together.

About Us

Our Mission

We enhance connection, collaboration and the experience of God within the Unification community through creating intergenerational partnerships.

Our Story

In January 2016, a group of younger and older Unificationists came together in Phoenix, Arizona with the intention to create a relevant and timely educational experience. We quickly realized how differently we saw things and how different our experiences are in this movement. We spent the next two days listening to each other in a living room with open minds, and as we discussed our ideas we realized that there were many misperceptions on both sides. As we shared more deeply and really listened to one another, we were able to begin to understand and appreciate each other.

We realized that the program we needed to create was one that enabled people to experience this intergenerational partnership as well, and thus, Project Phoenix was born.

Meet the Team

From across the country and generations, we work together to bring Project Phoenix to your community.
