True Mother is hosting a Rally of Hope on 9th August, but in fact many of us may be struggling with hopelessness. Events this year in particular may be contributing to underlying mental health challenges. This online event will aim to tackle the taboo surrounding depression.

A number of Unificationists will voice their perspective on the matters and registered participants will be able to contribute to the discussion via the live chat via the event moderator. If you suffer from depression, or know someone who does, or if you just want to find out more so that you can be better prepared to support those who experience depression, please join this event.

A Conversation About Depression

A significant number of us in the Unificationist community experience some form of mental illness during our lives. Depression is one of them.

During this online event, we will listen to the contributions of a few speakers reflecting on this particular illness. Questions can be submitted to the moderator during the event and these will be addressed during the conversation.
