

CARP: Turning Point, YAM: Going Deeper and Japanese 7-Day IPEC Workshops

Richard Buessing
December 14, 2017

A lot is happening at the International Peace and Education Center (IPEC) to close 2017 and to start the new year! Check out the available workshops suited for young adults who are new to the Divine Principle, young adults with a Unificationist upbringing, as well as Japanese-speakers!

CARP: Turning Point

The national and Los Angeles chapters of the Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles (CARP) are co-hosting their annual “Turning Point” retreat from December 26 – January 1. This retreat is especially suited to young adults and students who are relatively new to the Principle or who have been actively sharing the Divine Principle on their campuses or in their communities.

YAM: Going Deeper

The national Young Adult Ministry is hosting it’s first ever retreat at IPEC from January 3-9. This retreat has been designed with young adult Unificationists in mind, and will feature ample opportunity to study the Principle and True Parents’ lives, to ask questions, and to engage in meaningful conversations about owning one’s faith.

Start off the new year strong at IPEC this winter by turning over a new leaf or poring more closely over that leaf you inherited as a young Unificationist.

You can learn more about both of the opportunities and register at familyfed.org/dpretreats.

5th Japanese 7-Day Workshop

The fifth 7-day workshop for Japanese Unificationists will be held from January 19-26, 2018 at IPEC in Las Vegas. The entire program will be offered in Japanese—but we are now introducing English translation, so English-speakers are also welcome to attend!

The purpose of the workshop is to return to the basics of the Divine Principle. Participants will have the opportunity to listen to lectures about the Divine Principle and True Parents' providential course.

Renowned Japanese lecturers Shoichiro Nakamura and Masayuki Kachi will come from Japan especially to teach at the workshop. Both Rev. Nakamura and Rev. Kachi have taught at educational centers in Japan for over 40 years, and one of them has long researched True Parents' words as a member of Japan's history department.