New Community Center "KONEKT LAB" Launches Monthly Inspiration Gatherings and Public Initiatives

ZAGREB, Croatia - The Croatian and Slovenian communities have officially launched a new monthly program at the multi-purpose community center "Konekt Lab" in Zagreb. The inaugural Sunday Inspiration Gathering, held on August 23, brought together 16 in-person attendees alongside approximately 20 participants who joined virtually.

Inaugural Gathering and Educational Insights

The opening presentation explored human maturity and the practical meaning of "being fruitful," providing an accessible introduction to Divine Principle concepts. Following the lecture, attendees participated in informal fellowship, creating a relaxed and welcoming space for members and guests to interact and build connections.

New Public Initiatives and Resources

To further engage the local public, Konekt Lab has introduced several community-focused features:

"Thoughts That Inspire Me": A newly launched public program designed to encourage thoughtful reflection and dialogue.

Dedicated Book Corners: Quiet reading areas featuring True Parents' biographies, memoirs, and related publications, allowing visitors to explore the movement's core values and teachings at their own pace.

Bridging Community and Faith

Konekt Lab continues to develop as an active bridge between the Family Federation and the wider public. With additional open programs planned for the near future, the center aims to serve as a long-term hub for learning, inspiration, and community integration.
