Relationships: Prospects for Peace on the Korean Peninsula

TUESDAY, May 11, 2-3:15 pm
EST (New York Time)

Hello,

The situation in North Korea is one of increasing isolation and economic stagnation. The North Korean regime has become even more insular under the threat of the Covid pandemic, shutting down its borders to all but essential traffic. Economic sanctions, especially those restricting the import of oil are causing disruption to the production of food and could lead to widespread famine.

In this atmosphere, what can we expect from the business and economic community to be able to ease these tensions and create a climate of understanding that would be conducive to the opening of North Korea?

Cong. Bob McEwen

US Congressman (1981 – 1993)

Bob McEwen served six terms in the U.S. House of Representatives representing Ohio. During his congressional tenure, McEwen was selected by his colleagues to the senior position as one of four Republicans on the powerful House Committee Rules that manages floor time for members and has jurisdiction over all legislation. He was also a member of the House Select Committee on Intelligence and a U.S. delegate to the European Parliament for over a decade. Prior to Congress, he served three terms in the Ohio House of Representatives. In 2020, he was appointed by President Trump to the 1776 Commission to better enable a rising generation to understand the history and principles of the founding of the United States. He was also appointed to the Defense Science Board, Permanent Task Force on Threat Reduction for the Department of Defense. He is currently the Executive Director of the Council for National Policy.

Rev. Dr. Art Lindsley

Vice President of Theological Initiatives, Institute for Faith, Work & Economics

Dr. Lindsley oversees the development of a theology that integrates faith, work, and economics. Since 1987, he has served as President and Senior Fellow at the C.S. Lewis Institute. Prior to that, he was Director of Educational Ministries at the Ligonier Valley Study Center and Staff Specialist with the Coalition for Christian Outreach in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He is also co-founder of Reformed Theological Seminary's Washington, D.C. campus and serves on the Executive Committee for the Geneva Institute for Leadership and Public Policy.
