

Albanian Evening

Prague, Czech Republic, 26. November 2014

CARP organized another cultural evening, this time it was Albanian one. These cultural evenings are one of the way we use for WT, and it seems that it is quit effective. Even though, we decided to ask for a small fee to cover the expenses, 26 people came – all together members of CARP and FFWP and 11 guests. In between guests there came also Albanians who live in the Czech Republic. They found our event via Facebook.

Guests received a cup of Albanian mountain tea during registration and they had a chance to get to know about our activities through informational banners and catalogues while listening to Albanian traditional music. Program begun with a short presentation under the name „Beauty with bad reputation“. During presentation we heard about personal experiences from Albania, we cleared up some prejudices Czech people have about Albania and also we introduced CARP and our upcoming activities that guests can join.

After the presentation we learned to dance two traditional dances and some guests continued with dancing during the entire evening.

With help of our Albanian brothers and sisters we prepared different kinds of traditional food, which all guests enjoyed very much.

Albanian evening was, as well as previous Japanese evenings, a great experience and we want to continue with this kind of activities and to connect the pleasant with effective.
