THE WASHINGTON BRIEF

The New Global Flashpoint: Taiwan and the South China Sea

DEBATE PANELIST
David Sauer
Former CIA station chief in Asia

Ambassador Joseph DeTrani
Security Issues Commissioner, Bureau Special Affairs for negotiations with North Korea

Dr. Alexandre Mansourov
Professor, Center for Security Studies, Georgetown University

Dr. Michael Jenkins
President, The Washington Times Foundation

When the world recognized the PRC as the sole government of one China in 1979, Beijing backed off the pressure on Taiwan. But that has fallen by the wayside and China has turned up the heat again. High-profile visits to Taiwan by U.S. leaders, some say, signals a hollowing out of the U.S. "one China" policy? Furthermore, China claims 90% of the South China Sea as historically theirs, including the world's busiest shipping lanes and the territorial waters of other nations. Increasingly, the region looks like a flashpoint in search of a spark.

Join David Sauer, former CIA station chief in Asia, along with Ambassador Joseph DeTrani, former U.S. envoy to the six-party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor of security studies at Georgetown, as they discuss the most pivotal flashpoint in the world today.
