What If There Was a College...

Richard A. Panzer

August 4, 2014

What if there was an accredited 4 year college that took the 3 BLESSINGS seriously? That was committed to providing a secure space for students to deepen their personal faith, and where belief in God was not something you'd feel it was better to hide?

Where preparing to have a strong, healthy, happy, blessed marriage was supported, not threatened by the campus social scene? Where the college staff understood the aspirations of students in this area and affirmed those ideals?

Where students' faith, intellect, creativity, skills, relationships and careers are not compartmentalized in separate boxes, but develop in relationship to each other?

There IS such an institution. It's called Barrytown College. In just a couple of weeks the second entering class of students, including several exchange students from Sun Moon

University, will arrive on campus.

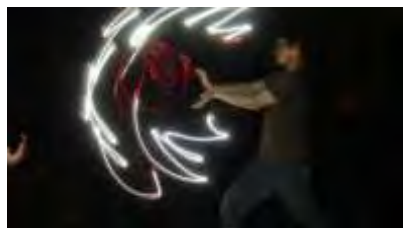

In addition to courses in World Religions and Philosophy, students will be able to take such courses as Graphic Design, Creative Writing, Song Composition, Sound and Music

Production for Video, Korean and Japanese language, as well as courses in Family Studies and Business.
