

Discussion: Health in Cheon Il Guk (led by Dr. Dieter Schmidt)

Summary of points discussed:

-definition of health in Cheon Il Guk and what next steps can we as UC health professionals take to promote this?

- need to develop the ability heal ourselves; to take responsibility for our health and know our body (being sensitive and knowing anatomy), to recognise our own value and focus on prevention.

-potential initiatives:

- review of different medical approaches around the world (like World Scripture but for medicine/health) and define what we consider as health in CIG (overall theory), what approaches we promote . Formation of a study group to develop and overall structure and theory of health. We need identity and vision.
- prevention & awareness raising: eg at HARP workshops; promoting and supporting health in our older population (1st gen), breastfeeding support. To offer 'health days' or seminars in Camberg where we offer different types of treatment eg massage/acupuncture
- long-term: an education body in Europe teaching and incorporating different approaches (uniting eastern and Western medicine).
- projects in poorer countries. The Japanese have initiated projects in third world countries

(comment: mental health is being addressed separately by the Healthy Minds project at this point. In our movement, it has been a much neglected and less understood aspect of health care and deserves special consideration).

Dieter started out by reading a short extract from CSG which stimulated questions and comments about the definition of health in CIG, the goals and aims, based on words of TP.

Comments from participants:

-Religions traditionally promote denial of the physical body. TF has said that eating, sleeping and sex are all given by God. However, in the fallen world Satan can use the physical world and body to give us pain and misery. So how can we advocate true health? TF said we can be our own doctors. In CIG, if you get sick or break something, you can look inside your own body, and may only need medical attention for more serious matters.

-Our body is a temple of God to be kept clean. I tell my patients that I am not a repair shop to exchange broken parts. We are responsible to make changes. But this is not easy! Both mind and body are important.

-Even though we are healthy, if we work hard our muscles become hard. Sometimes our body gets to have problems even when we eat well and exercise. There are some steps that can be taken such as going to get a massage, or physiotherapy. But for example my treatment is for more difficult people, not really for very healthy people. If we know about physical constructions and anatomy then we can cure ourselves. I use a tennis ball for my hip or back and front side. Even internal organs I press sometimes. If we know such techniques we can cure ourselves. If that doesn't work then we can go to the doctor.

-We should also detoxify ourselves. TM talks about purifying our environment. Detoxification is physical and spiritual. Fasting is a way to detoxify. Veganism is also detoxifying. Spiritually it's the same, it's through prayer. We realise our sins and impurities by prayer.

-How to make unity, TF said that the spirit is subject and body is the object. Love is main point in unity. At that point our mind and body are one. So practice of love is important for health.

- As a western doctor I refer patients to the hospital but in our clinic we also have all types of oriental medicine; chi gong and tai chi, emotional healing, nutritional therapy, do distant healing, and acupuncture. It's an attempt to fulfil a universal approach and our patients like this

Finally, based on the discussion and comments, proposals were made for potential initiatives:

- review of different medical approaches around the world (like World Scripture but for medicine/health) and define what we consider as health in CIG (overall theory), what approaches we promote . Formation of a study group to develop and overall structure and theory of health. We need identity and vision.
- prevention & awareness raising: eg at HARP workshops; promoting and supporting health in our older population (1st gen), breastfeeding support. To offer 'health days' or seminars in Camberg where we offer different types of treatment eg massage/acupuncture
- long-term: an education body in Europe teaching and incorporating different approaches (uniting eastern and Western medicine).
- projects in poorer countries. The Japanese have initiated projects in third world countries

This conference was surely a great start!

COMMENTS:

there are many more brothers/sisters in this area--> e.g. we could make website/newsletter for other to give more information on health (-related topics) working group for education and health/which was mentioned already we could combine next meeting with visiting some health institution e.g. an hospital for alternative medicine

we should expand the list of members in the health field
