ABOUT THE PROJECT

When a child receives basic education, they are more likely to avoid criminal activities, such as drugs and street violence.

More than 50% of children in public schools are considered to be failing. Due to a growing population of Jordanians and the influx of refugees, there has been tremendous pressure on Jordan's public education system, resulting in children, especially refugees, to fall behind. However, you can make an impact on these refugee children!

By donating to the Arabic Literacy Project, your contribution will allow the children to have the necessary attention to thrive. With a 1 to 5 teacher to student ratio, the classes provide the proper attention each of the students need when learning. With the goal to empower the refugee children in hopes of having a brighter future, the teachers provide the basic skills in Arabic, Mathematics, English at the 2 WFWP centers for after-school classes 5 days a week. Additionally, the committed group of university volunteers and teachers enforce the importance of good character, conducting experiential activities like drama training that teaches equality, honesty, and cooperation.
