

FFWPU USA: Ocean Church's 41st Anniversary, October 1, 2021

On October 1, 1980 the late Rev. Dr. Sun Myung Moon and Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon officially began Ocean Church, a movement founded upon and guided by a philosophy and vision that humanity is the natural stewards of the ocean and all of Creation.

"The vision of Ocean Church is to go to major ports and begin training young people with fishing and the ocean," said Rev. Moon in Gloucester, Mass., at the time. "We call it Ocean Church because our plan is not just for fishing, but to create a network of people with a vision for the ocean."

This vision quickly expanded nationwide and abroad, followed by the 1981 inception of the National Ocean Challenge Program (NOCP) for young people.

On this 41st anniversary of Ocean Church, let's revisit a passage from Rev. Moon's 2009 autobiography, As a Peace-Loving Global Citizen, which shares about mastering the sea and the great opportunities of the oceanic era.

Excerpt:

History has shown that the country that controls the seas will become a world leader. Consider Britain... a small island nation in the Atlantic, came to possess colonies on all the continents and oceans and built an empire... Korea, and most of the rest of the East, has taken a different approach. The Eastern world does not discard the spirit in the pursuit of the material... As a totally materialistic civilization brings degradation, the opportunity presents itself to learn from the more spiritually-oriented East...

The era of a Pacific civilization is opening, bringing together Western science and Eastern spirituality... The only philosophy that can prevent wars between religions and open a path to a peaceful world is one that proclaims that humanity is one, transcendent of race, nationality, and religion. To protect itself from the dangers of war, Korea must plant a philosophy of oneness in the world...

The Pacific era is at hand. Anyone who cannot rule the ocean cannot become a leader in the Pacific age... The true alternative energy source is the ocean. Energy from the hydrogen in the sea represents the future of humanity. Two-thirds of the earth's surface is water. This means that two-thirds of the raw materials that humanity needs for the future are contained in the ocean...

The oceanic era will not begin without human effort. We must first go out into the oceans. We must go out on boats and fight the waves. Without such courage we cannot prepare ourselves for the oceanic age. The country that conquers the oceans will become a dominant power in the world and find the world eager to study its culture and language. Korea must become the champion steward of the Pacific Ocean. It must understand the will of the Creator and manage His resources well.

“I feel God the strongest through nature, and being completely immersed in His Creation,” said Chloe. “The National Ocean Challenge Program is a profound way of renewing my relationship with God.”

Over the summer, Chloe, a young Unificationist from Illinois, spent three weeks in the seaside town of Kodiak, Alaska, where she joined 24 other young Unificationists for the annual National Ocean Challenge Program (NOCP).

“I have a special connection with God through water,” she said. “God, like bodies of water, remains as steady, level, and serene as the horizon of the water, no matter how tumultuous the waves.”

From July 8 to 29, the group spent long days boating and fishing, learning the basics of an industry pioneered in the US by the late Rev. Dr. Sun Myung Moon and his wife Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon, NOCP’s founders. For Chloe and others, the program was a transformative journey and humbling experience.

“I know that the ocean is where Father Moon spent so much of his time reflecting and setting goals,” said Tatsuhiro, a participant from Nevada. “I could also reflect upon my past year as part of CARP Las Vegas, and pray about what God has in store for me going into the future.”

“Father Moon’s stories about training himself in character and faith while on the ocean and deeply experiencing God while fishing has always been inspirational to me,” added Andreas, a participant from Germany. “It’s an opportunity to challenge myself... and to make a new start in my life and a commitment to carry on a life of faith and contribution to society.”

First established in Gloucester, Mass., in 1981, Rev. Moon brought the Ocean Challenge program to Alaska in 1986. Today NOCP seeks to continue Rev. and Dr. Moon’s tradition and legacy of growing the character and faith of young people through leadership training on the sea. Through internal guidance and connecting to their words and experience, participants have the opportunity to walk in the founders’ footsteps and experience all the lessons that the ocean has to offer.

“The person with ‘Alaska Spirit’ stays out on the ocean until he catches the daily allowance,” Rev. Moon said. “One cannot become a true fisherman unless he learns how to endure this way... Once a person receives intense training to become a fisherman, he can go anywhere in the world and become a leader of people.”

As part of stewardship training, the group received safe boating certification, and spent full days on the ocean learning how to jig and troll for Pacific salmon, halibut, rockfish, and ling cod. Activities in nature and exploring Kodiak were also part of the experience.

“Since I was very young, I always enjoyed fishing,” said Francis, a participant from Maryland. “My grandfather was a big fisherman in his village in Spain and I have always had a strong connection to the ocean. I felt a calling to learn more about the ocean providence, [and] to make more connections with people and learn new fishing skills.”

Throughout the program, directed by Unificationist couple Lukas and Tasnah Bercy, participants rotated four boats while learning from Senior Captains Greg Odlin and Jorge Mendez, who spent many years with the founders. The captains shared their personal stories and lessons at sea in addition to their unique fishing styles.

For some participants, like Connor from Maryland, it was the first time visiting Alaska and fishing. “I was 10 years old when my sister did the Ocean Challenge program,” he recalls. “After hearing her experience and tasting the salmon she brought home, I knew I wanted to participate someday myself. Twelve years later and that goal became a reality!”

The group was also joined for a few days by Dr. Chung Sik Yong, regional director of Family Federation for World Peace and Unification (FFWPU) North America, who enjoyed fishing and educational fellowship activities. And while every person’s experiences and inspirations varied, their main takeaway of ‘Alaska Spirit’ was the same.

History

The first Ocean Challenge program was initiated by Rev. Sun Myung Moon on July 1, 1981. The program was designed to cultivate faith and leadership by challenging participants to spend a summer fishing for Atlantic bluefin tuna. Rev. Moon designed the Good-Go boats, still used today.

Ocean Challenge instructed its participants in both the theoretical and practical aspects of boating and fishing. Ocean Challenge was also unique in its strongly spiritual focus, encouraging participants to challenge their limitations and concepts of themselves, others, and God. There was also a strong emphasis on self-discipline, self-motivation, leadership, and meeting God on the swells of the ocean. The Ocean Challenge spirit motto was, "If God calls, I will go, no matter the circumstances."

When Rev. Moon started "Ocean Challenge Alaska" in 1986 in Kodiak, Alaska, he expressed that the Alaskan Spirit was as same as Ocean Challenge Spirit.

"I like to use the phrase "Alaska Spirit." By this I mean the habit of getting up at five o'clock in the morning, going out to sea, and not returning until well after midnight, when in the summer it is still light. The person with "Alaska Spirit" stays out on the ocean until he catches the daily allowance. One cannot become a true fisherman unless he learns how to endure this way. Catching fish is not a pleasure cruise. No matter how many fish may be in the ocean, they are not going to just jump into the boat. It takes specialized knowledge and much experience. Once a person receives intense training to become a fisherman, he can go anywhere in the world and become a leader of people. Learning to be a fisherman is good leadership training."

NOCP has been hosted each summer in Kodiak since 2007. Chris Fiala, Frank Button, and Minoru Kageyama, three veterans of Ocean Challenge, launched a three-week summer program for youth ages 16-35 to give the next generation a taste of the Father Moon's love for the ocean, fishing, and all that is has to teach.
