Relationships: A Reason for Being

During a time of social restrictions and distancing, young Unificationists from around the U.S. and Canada connected through a new national e-series designed to strengthen their interpersonal relationships. Several guest speakers discussed the theme “Relationships: A Reason for Being” during the 2020 Midwest Young Adult Retreat, organized by Youth and Young Adult Ministry (YAYAM) regional leaders and staff from August 14 to 16.

“Having the right tools can help us recognize our role in taking responsibility in our relationships,” said Dr. David Burgess, one of the speakers invited from Project Phoenix, a grassroots organization working to heal family relationships.

About 35 young adults, ages 18 to 30, participated in the online program with sessions examining family relationships, friendships, partnerships and marriage.

Project Phoenix representatives shared personal stories and advice on how children can improve their relationship with their parents, while participants were given helpful exercises to use with their families.
