"Unjust State-Driven Trial - Protect the Human Rights of Believers"

When the first-instance decision was issued on 25th March last year, it seems that quite a few believers never imagined that a dissolution order would actually be handed down. However, I had long said at gatherings and elsewhere that we could by no means be optimistic. After reviewing many records of lawsuits concerning large donations made to the religious organization, I noticed that there were numerous unjust rulings in which the organization was made to lose for unreasonable reasons. Unfortunately, my fears proved correct. Yet the content of this decision was truly terrible.

The Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT), facing the fact that there had been almost no damage since the compliance declaration, forcibly fabricated evidence by even falsifying and altering written statements from former believers. However, this fabrication was exposed in court, and the court could no longer adopt these materials as evidence. As a result, the grounds for dissolution effectively ceased to exist. In response, the court - apparently anxious that it must dissolve the organization no matter what - resorted to speculating about damage.

Even though it acknowledged that harm had significantly decreased after the compliance declaration [See editor's note 1 below], the court simply assumed that there must still be latent, hidden damage.

Furthermore, it went so far as to judge that settlements and negotiated agreements themselves constituted illegal acts. I am not a legal expert, but even so, I was stunned by this acrobatic stretch of logic. It has reached the level of mere fault-finding and nitpicking.

Even after the case moved to the High Court, I had a pessimistic view: if the High Court inherited such irrational reasoning, then no matter how strong the Unification Church's arguments were, it would have no chance of winning. However, according to what I heard indirectly, the High Court judges asked MEXT to "present concrete evidence in accordance with the principle of trial by evidence", yet MEXT did not produce any new evidence. Hearing this gave me a glimmer of hope. Nevertheless, the High Court ultimately issued a decision that followed the first-instance ruling.

Even I, who am not a believer, was truly shocked. Japan's judiciary issued this decision with the clear intention that the Family Federation must be dissolved, ignoring even the proper procedures (due process) guaranteed by the Constitution. Just like the first-instance ruling, there is no doubt that this is a politically driven trial.

Will Soka Gakkai be next? Here, Daisaku Ikeda (1928-2023), Buddhist philosopher, peacebuilder, educator, author and poet who was the Founding President of Soka Gakkai International. The photo shows him with the Soka Gakkai Student Division in Takasaki, Gunma Prefecture, Japan

This is no longer merely a problem affecting a single religious organization. By making such an unjust and extra-legal decision, a precedent has been created in which an unpopular group can be crushed by force. I have even heard people say that the next target might be Soka Gakkai [See editor's note 2 below] or others. This would constitute clear religious persecution and would shake the very foundations of the rule of law.

What is most worrying, however, is discrimination and persecution against the believers themselves. A situation is approaching in which believers - who have committed no crime - may be chased away as if they were criminals. The fundamental human rights that Japanese citizens normally enjoy are now at risk of being taken away. I believe the organization must urgently demand that the government strongly protect and safeguard the human rights of its believers.

Editor's note 1: The 2009 compliance declaration of the [Unification Church of Japan (now the Family Federation for World Peace and Unification) was a formal commitment by the organization to reform its practices in response to longstanding public criticism and legal challenges.

The Unification Church in Japan had faced numerous allegations related to recruitment tactics and donation solicitation, termed "spiritual sales" (靈感商法) by a hostile network of activist lawyers who had declared the religious organization an enemy. These issues led to multiple lawsuits orchestrated by the activist lawyers and significant media backlash. This prompted the organization to take measures to restore its reputation and demonstrate compliance with legal and ethical standards.

The religious organization pledged to stop possibly unethical donation practices, including what the hostile network of lawyers claimed amounted to "pressuring members into making large financial contributions under spiritual pretexts."

This was in response to accusations from the same activist lawyers that followers "were being manipulated into giving away substantial amounts of money or property."

The Unification Church stated it would enhance internal oversight to ensure compliance with ethical and legal standards. Measures included better training for leaders and stricter guidelines for evangelization and solicitation of donations.

After this compliance declaration, there was a significant decrease in the number of lawsuits against the Unification Church - since 2015 called the Family Federation. The religious organization has used this as evidence that it has improved its practices and should not be subject to dissolution.]

Soka Gakkai promotes peace, culture, and education through initiatives that focus on personal transformation (human revolution) - the belief that changing oneself positively impacts society; peace activism - anti-nuclear campaigns, human rights advocacy, and interfaith dialogue; education - institutions like Soka University emphasize value creation and global citizenship; community engagement - social welfare programs, disaster relief, and environmental sustainability efforts.

To actualize these ideals in governance, Soka Gakkai founded the Komeito party in 1964 (now known as New Komeito or simply Komeito). The party's purpose was to translate Buddhist-based humanistic values into public policy. While legally separate from Soka Gakkai, Komeito has long been backed by members of Soka Gakkai and focuses on peace-oriented diplomacy (e.g., supporting Japan's pacifist constitution); social welfare policies (benefiting education, healthcare, and the elderly); grassroots democracy (reflecting the voice of ordinary citizens)

Since 1999, Komeito has been a coalition partner with the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP), influencing policies while maintaining a centrist stance.

Despite its contributions, Soka Gakkai's political role has been controversial, with critics accusing it of blurring the lines between religion and politics. Some also argue that Komeito's alliance with the conservative LDP compromises its original pacifist ideals.

Soka Gakkai envisions an ideal world through personal empowerment, education, and political engagement. While its approach is rooted in Buddhist ethics, its political involvement remains a complex and debated issue.]

Federation President Masaichi Hori Issues Statement Following Tokyo High Court Decision on Dissolution Order

by the editorial department of Sekai Nippo

On 4th March, the Tokyo High Court decided to uphold the first instance ruling of the Tokyo District Court ordering the dissolution of the religious corporation Family Federation for World Peace and Unification (formerly the Unification Church).

In response, Masaichi Hori (堀 正一), who had served as president of the Family Federation, released a statement on 5th March in his personal capacity. In it, Hori declared that the decision violates the principle of trial based on evidence and that preparations [See editor's note below] are underway to file a special appeal to the Supreme Court.

He also stated that he will respond sincerely to liquidation procedures and called for measures to ensure that human rights violations against believers do not occur. Hori lost his position as president when the liquidation process began following the High Court's decision.

The full text of the statement is as follows.

Statement Following the High Court Decision

As you know, at 11:00 a.m. on 4th March, the Tokyo High Court issued its decision and dismissed the Family Federation's appeal. It is extremely regrettable that the Family Federation's arguments were not accepted in the appeal proceedings.

In particular, regarding the original decision of the Tokyo District Court, although it deprives the believers of the preeminent human right of freedom of religion, the court readily endorsed and retroactively applied arbitrary changes to long-established legal interpretations. This constitutes a violation of both the Constitution and international law.

Furthermore, we argued before the High Court that arbitrary conjecture not based on facts or evidence violates the principle of adjudication based on evidence.

In addition, in October last year, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights issued a press release warning that the Tokyo District Court's decision violated international law. However, the Tokyo High Court rejected the above arguments and issued its decision while completely ignoring the warnings from the international community.

Moreover, since 2022 the Family Federation has implemented a number of church reforms, including obtaining donation confirmation forms and establishing certified counselors. After the Act on the Prevention of Improper Solicitation of Donations was enacted in 2023, there have been no cases in which the organization received recommendations or orders from the Consumer Affairs Agency.

Recently, through settlements with parties in group lawsuits and through a compensation committee, the organization has also addressed claims from many individuals alleging damages, even beyond what is required by law.

Despite such efforts toward reform and improvement, the dissolution order of the District Court was upheld primarily on the basis of settlements and agreements, without recognizing these reforms and without concrete evidence of legal violations. This is deeply regrettable. After consulting promptly with our attorneys, we intend to proceed with preparations for an appeal to the Supreme Court.

At the same time, on 4th March the court appointed a liquidator to oversee the liquidation process. We intend to respond sincerely to the liquidation procedures.

Unfortunately, following the assassination of former Prime Minister Abe and also when the District Court issued the dissolution order, numerous human rights violations occurred against members and their families, including discrimination, prejudice, defamation, and harassment. We sincerely ask everyone to ensure that such violations against our members and their families do not occur in the future.

Furthermore, we are an organization that sincerely believes in and follows God, the Heavenly Parent, and works to realize God’s will. Therefore, even if our corporate legal status is denied, there will be absolutely no change in our commitment to continue religious activities aimed at fulfilling Heaven’s will.

Rather, taking this event as an opportunity, we intend to make even greater efforts to let many people know the truth about our activities. While continuing missionary and evangelistic work, we will strive to earn the trust of society more broadly.
