International Media Association for Peace Reclaiming Media Integrity What's in the Narrative? Who Decides?

Tuesday, May 26, 2026 @ 2-3 PM U.S./Canada Eastern

In an era where media narratives shape public opinion and influence social values, questions of integrity and accountability have never been more urgent. This webinar, hosted by the International Media Association for Peace (IMAP), explores how media content is crafted, who controls the stories we consume, and the subtle ways narratives can either strengthen or undermine the foundations of society. Participants will examine the power dynamics behind media production and the ethical responsibilities of those who shape public discourse.

At the heart of this discussion is the critical role of the family in society. As the primary unit for transmitting values, culture, and resilience, families are uniquely positioned to counterbalance media influence and foster discernment in younger generations.

Join Dr. Robert Kittel, forty-year lecturer on family and cultural values. Commentators: Dr. Tyler Hendricks, President Emeritus, HJ International Graduate School; Dr. Jack Corley, former Northeast Regional President, UPF, and Ms. Cheryl Wetzstein, award-winning former reporter of social and cultural issues for The Washington Times. Moderated by Hosted and Moderated by Hans Moyer and Ray Lipowcan, executives for Universal Peace Federation's International Media Association for Peace
