

Thoughts on Headwing...

Headwing may be complicated in its application, but in its heart it is very simple. A parental heart that wants to benefit everyone and take care of everyone is the essence of Headwing. We may not be perfect yet, but we can do the best we know how. That is the beginning. With that heart we can find the solutions that seem so complicated when we only think about them.

It's a problem when we try to explain it, because there are so many kinds of parents in the world. Some protect only their own family and ignore others' needs. Some fail to do even that. That's why we need the example of True Parents. There are many kinds of dads; we need the Dad of all Dads. There are many kinds of moms; we need the Mom of all Moms. The one who can connect to the heart of Heavenly Mother and Heavenly Father.

I think that being the Father of all Fathers or the Mother of all Mothers is more important than being King of Kings or Queen of Queens. Because that heart is the beginning of all things, all positions, all situations. It is the beginning of public mind and public service. It is the beginning of a world which everyone would want to live in.

So if being a messiah seems too high to shoot for, try being the best parent you can be towards others. Follow the best example you can find.

This is how God makes things: a very simple heart that has infinite applications.
