

The King indicated that Brexit is of God's providence to separate good from evil

Dan Day
April 13, 2019
Sanctuary Church UK

On Saturday April 13th William and myself went to Birmingham to attend the opening rally of Nigel Farrages' new Brexit Party – As I have mentioned before, the King has indicated that Brexit is part of God's providence to separate good from evil, and the agendas of the Satanic cultural Marxism 'big state' centralised power structures such as the U.N and the E.U.

The rally was advertised just two days ahead, and filled the International Conference Centre in Birmingham almost to capacity. People had come from all over the country to attend it. This is a very large auditorium which is a massive architectural feature that dominates central Birmingham.

The first thing that caught my eye as we reached the queue was a small group of 'Anti-Racist' (socialist) protestors. I immediately went up to them and challenged them as to why they were there; "Are you expecting racists here today?" I asked in a firm tone, as I pointed to the orderly queue of polite mild mannered people of varying ages and yes, varying races. She didn't really have a leg to stand on and mumbled excuses.

William then followed up with a lecture on the English revolution, and the parallels of history. The lady, who I presumed was the leader of the group retreated in a hurry. First victory of the day!

In the auditorium I chatted with a gentleman next to me who confirmed my above statement; He told me that he had left UKIP because it had gone too far to the right and was not comfortable with its racist tendencies. I am sure there were many like him in that hall.

Nigel Farage gave a barnstorming talk, which was in fact more than about Brexit alone. It was also about 'natural rights' – The political establishment has lost sight of its role as servants of the people.

The theme is 'Fighting Back' ie. rescuing Brexit from the hands of those who want to reverse the referendum and stop it from happening at all.

There was a good humoured spirit at the event. Unpopular politicians were booed of course but it was with a good humour and there was no nastiness at all.

On the way out we got into discussion with two ladies and it turned out that one of them had worked at one of our church businesses a long time ago and was very happy to meet us. We exchanged phone numbers for future contact. It is my experience nowadays that wherever I go Heavenly Father will send people.

On the way out we picked up some placards they were handing out for future use. William decided to model these placards as 'Angel of The North' outside the auditorium. As shown below.

However, unheard by me a 'Remain' supporting member of the public told him that he 'Ought to leave' – When William told me about this as we walked away, it made me angry, so I told him to show me who the offending person was, because I was not going to let that slip by.

We went back to the spot and William took out his placards again. Luckily for him the offender was not willing to engage and played with his phone so we let him be.

However, an elderly Afro-Caribbean lady shouted out support for us and I went home thinking about the arrogant Anti-Racism protestors we had met at the beginning.

It was a good and important day. I do feel deeply ashamed at how little I am able to do, and incapable I am in front of the providence. But William wisely says that the central figures of history were small, but God was able to multiply the conditions that they made.

I don't feel like a central figure myself, but certainly I stand for The Second King who is the central figure, so hopefully the things we did on that day will serve a good purpose.

You can find Nigel Farrage's speech on Youtube.

Dan Day Reporting.