In order to resolve the conflict, the Universal Peace Federation, which connects leaders of politics, religion, academics, media, arts and sports, has turned focus toward Africa.

Africa, where the communities have been destroyed by civil war, continued to suffer from extreme drought, factionalism and sectarian conflicts.

The Founder of Family Federation Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon placed special emphasis on the "Interdependence, Mutual Prosperity, Mutual Justice and Universal Values of New Africa."

"Africa is where mankind is living to build Heaven on earth by communicating with each other without high and low and free from war, with equality, peace and unity."

Senegal President Macky Sall also said that African economic movements should grow and contribute to global peace through family values and personality education.

Religious leaders and delegates visited the island of Goree, which was notorious as a transit point for slave trade and held a liberation ceremony, which added meaning.

A total of 1,200 participants from 60 nations, including 35 former and current presidents and prime ministers of Senegal, as well as the current ministers, expressed the significance of building a New Africa by signing the Dakar Peace Declaration which contains the resolution and recommendation of peace....
