

Rev. Hyung Jin Moon Gives Guidance at East Garden Tour November 21, 2012

Rev. Hyung Jin Moon shows staff his prayer hut where he prayed and meditated during the early hours of the morning. - Rock garden became a venue for meditation

A stone sculpture behind the prayer shelter. - Rev. Moon and his spouse constructed this rock garden using local stream-bed stones.

Rev. Hyung Jin Moon, concurrently the president of both the Unification Church USA and the Unification Church International, held his first official departmental leaders' meeting at the East Garden church complex in Irvington, New York on Tuesday, Nov. 20, 2012. After a thorough walking tour of the buildings and grounds, he talked to the leaders of ministry, branding, public affairs, blessed life and legal departments about his goals for upcoming months. He said the focus will be upon creating "a healthy church and a growing church." "We want this health to reach to the grassroots structures. We want to shift our attention to the field, because no one joins the headquarters church. So, we would like to shift the role of headquarters from a command role to more of a support role for the local churches," he said.

He added that it is essential for headquarters (HQ) to provide products that the field can really use and that many of the recommendations of the "witnessing summits" of 2008 and 2009 would be acted upon. "We will continue the efforts that came from the witnessing summits," said.

In regard to the ministerial products created by the Lovin' Life Ministry, he said, "we want to keep up the core curriculum, the Launch Pad and the good visual materials that we made and build upon it."

Rev. Moon urged increased efforts to incorporate Bible study in Unificationist educational programs and worship. "Let's add a stronger Biblical content. After all, we are Christians. God did use the cross to bring salvation – the redemption of humanity's sins. That is huge!" he said, adding: "Let's not shy away from Christian language. One of the tragedies of growing up in the movement is not learning the Bible. There is this whole tradition of studying the Bible that is missing in our movement. We have no need to be embarrassed about it. Invite back the biblical roots of our church. You know, worshipping God, praising God is difficult without the Bible. By studying the Bible we will connect with our real roots.” Rev. Moon also told the group that he is eager to act on an idea put forward by Yeonah Nim, his spouse, to create a “Completed Testament Age” Bible, including the Old Testament, the New Testament and the Divine Principle.

The formal meeting with a complete tour of the grounds and the buildings, including his favorite spots for winter sledding and the trees he used to climb as a boy. Rev. Moon and his wife, Rev. Yeonah Moon, walked along with his advisors, Dr. Anthony Guerra and Rev. James Edgerly.

The 20-acre East Garden property, including a conference center and several residences, originated from a purchase of the “Exquisite Acres” estate in 1973 for $625,000. There were extensive physical improvements in following years. In the early 1980’s a two-story residence and conference center were built to accommodate larger groups of visitors. Rev. Sun Myung Moon and Mrs. Moon, affectionately known as True Father and True Mother, used it as their primary residence for decades as well for meetings of Unificationist clergy and for VIP visitors from around the world. True Father held regular 5:00 a.m. Hoon Dok Hwe prayer meetings in the conference hall as recently as 2010.

“I want all of you to take a walking tour just to get the East Garden feel,” Rev. Hyung Jin Moon told the staffers. The visitors included Dr. Michael Balcomb, the church vice-president, Rev. David Rendel, Rev. Phillip Schanker, Pastor Jaga Gavin, Rev. Moon Shik Kim, Koichi Nakai,” Doug Burton, Susan Bouachri, Kaye Allen and Victoria Roomet. Hyung Jin Nim brought the group to his private meditation hut behind the main building and told them: “This is the little house where I lived for six years! I used to come here to pray at 2:30 in the morning.” He and his spouse brought stones from local stream beds to create several stone designs and Zen-like gardens.

Rev. Moon mentioned that he wants his children to grow up with a proper sense of the distinction between public money and private money. “I tell my kids that their daddy and mommy don’t own a house here, because all of these buildings belong to the church. This is public property.”

*Douglas Burton
New York*