The Home of the Brave

February 6, 2022

Hello! Thank you King Kyle and all the folks up in PA; it was great to see you on God's Day here in Tennessee. Shout out to King Kyle and to all the folks up there. We love you guys. God bless you guys! Thanks for all you're doing up there.

Let's go into our word today. Let's go to Mark chapter 9 and verse 42. Let's read together.

Mark 9: 42- 50

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

43 And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

44 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

47 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire:

48 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

50 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his saltness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

Amen! That's the end of chapter 9.

But let's go to verse 36- 37

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them, 37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

So this whole section is about the kids, right. Why? Because the kids are the next generation; they are the next protectors of a civilization. Now, Lenin, Stalin, all the political Satanists, they know that he who has control over the kids for one generation, that leads to obedience. One generation! That's not much! People say, "It's three generations away," right? No; it's one generation away, folks! And that's what the totalitarians and the Communists and the political Satanists, anybody who works for the 666-Beast understands. You have to capture the kids, separate them from God and then you will control that future destiny.

Now, that doesn't mean you worship children. That doesn't mean that they are God or that they are perfect; obviously they are not. We talked about this on the last Wednesday service. Then we go through all those topics: we've got parenting, we've got marriage; we've got absolute sex and romance, and dates with your wife. We cover all sorts of topics. But in English I try to stay on point even though sometimes I do feel like talking about that.

Parents' reactions

But the point is: kids are not perfect; they still have to go through the growth stage. Parents have to still raise them. Remember we were talking about the fact that when your kids are young they will try to test their boundaries; they will try to find out what they can and cannot get away with. There's a great program that the Queen recommends to younger parents. We have a lot of younger parents in our PA and Tennessee communities. It's a Korean program on parenting and helping parents deal with their children's behavior.

Let's say: in one situation the child is acting crazy, crying like crazy, crying like crazy; crying, crying. And then the mom shouts, "Stop that crying! Why are you crying? I don't understand why you're crying!" Of course you understand why your child is crying, but the CHILD doesn't understand why he or she is crying. At a certain age of three, four, five, six, seven years old, they don't know exactly why they're crying.

A lot of parents fall into the emotional traps. So we always tell the young queens, "You've got to be careful," and of course the kings as well, but especially the younger queens. Satan is going to try to get you with the emotional realm; he's going to try to make you fall into his traps in the emotional realm, because it IS frustrating and it is aggravating and it is a pain in the booty when you've got some child yelling at you, screaming, "Aw, aw, aw!" That happens anyway. Parents, you all know what I'm talking about; it happens. So the level of intensity of crying starts to elevate, and once they realize that doesn't work so well, so now they're going to learn and then they just keep going until they stop.

But the point is: parents, how you react to that is very important, because if you are just reacting and you say, "Stop crying! Why are you crying?" you can say all sorts of things that your child will remember. In our mind maybe those words, we won't remember; but those words have the power of life and death at the time. That's what the Scripture says. So we have to be careful with what we say, and we have to be careful with what kind of blessings you give, and what kind of curses you give. That's why your grandparents told you, "Don't curse," because they understood that scripture; they understood that words also have consequences if they're said repeatedly.

With the kids, if you shout, "Oh! You dummy, etc..." all the time, then the kid will start believing those things and he will actually start following that behavior whether we like it or not. So it's very important that you understand that you have to be careful about what kind of life or what kind of death you give out. That kind of self-reflecting is very important, so you got to be training that muscle; you got to work out. That's a very critical ability, when it's used in the real world, real time during the week. Not at Sunday service; of course everyone is perfect through Sunday. But anytime else, that is when the temptation comes in. Amen!

Kids can't communicate what they want

So, when the kid is acting crazy: number one you have to understand that this is not personal. Moms, this is not personal; your child does not hate you. Now, think about it. In the normal world of adults, nobody shouts at you, "Waaah!" Nobody shouts at you. So that is a very extreme type of communication. Younger parents, you will wonder, "Why is this person shouting like that? Can you shout in a nicer way so I feel empathy? Now, I feel I'm being attacked, I'm being assaulted by you."

Okay now you understand the child doesn't have the ability to communicate everything that it wants, and it doesn't have the power to be able to say why he's stressed. This is a five-year-old child speaking. He can't say, "Well you know why I'm stressed, mom and dad? Because you know thirteen days ago you blew up. You were fighting with Mom and this and that and then I came in the room." No, that child is not going to be able to explain why he's feeling stressed, "There's a serious event that lead to the culmination of my stress coming in over the top, and that's why I'm boiling over; that's why I'm acting like that. And that's why I'm going to continue to shout at you and not speaking to you right now in immaculate analytical English!"

But the point is: that's not going to happen. A child feels a stress that's accumulating over different things that he encounters at a young age. That stress could be from the parents; that stress could be from the siblings. It could also be from guests. If you have guests at your house all the time, your kids also will feel stressed by this. For example we had guests through the house all the time; all the time. So it was like always a public event. You'd go out and just try to get a glass of water in the bathroom, and some guy is there, "Oh, it's a true child," or something like that. So you said, "Who are you? I don't know you. Please, I just need water." And it was aggravating as a child, because as a child you don't know how to deal with this; nobody told you how to deal with this - 10 years old, 12 years old, etc.

The point is: even people in your house can aggravate children. So a child may explode because of a series of stressful things. Remember, it doesn't know how to tell us and to handle stress like a mature adult who has been training and dealing with these emotions for years. It does not understand that it's not helpful for him to behave in stupid ways. The child is not trained at all; they have not gone through those vicissitudes of life. They have not gone through these things so they cannot process this correctly. All they know is that, "if I cry, then I get attention," whether that's positive or whether that's negative. That's what they know. They know that it attracts attention and, "Mommy and Daddy at least will pay attention to me." Now what they do could be different; it could be negative or it could be positive, but they know that if they cry Mommy or Daddy is going to give their attention.

Ruling the Kingdom with justice

So this is the key, and this is one of the things we were talking about on Wednesday; when your child is acting like that, you need to understand what? That you're kings and priests, queens and evangelists, okay? So we have to rule the kingdom with JUSTICE; we can't just act emotionally. If somebody has a fit in a demonstration, you can't just go and punch him in the nose or stab him. You can't do that, right? You cannot escalate to that point. If somebody is exercising free speech, you let them do free speech. When protesters came around the RIFF, we went around passing water; we gave them bottles of water. "Go ahead! Scream, shout out; do whatever you want, but don't touch anybody, okay? Don't hurt anybody! Scream all you want. You can say I'm a cult leader all you want, or whatever, but you can't hurt anybody. You can't touch anyone."

So the point is: when we are ruling a kingdom as the father, the mother, king and queen, priest and evangelist, you have to come at it from that perspective. It can't just be, "Oh, my Mommy did this, my Daddy did this, or my grandparents did this and it seemed to work." We have to think with a biblical mindset from a principle of justice. So if the child is acting around the room, acting crazy, acting like a fool, or whatever you want to say, and we come at the child - because we're frustrated, we're aggravated, we had a bad day that day- and we just pour vitriol or we punish the child or beat him and these punishments are not determined on understandable principles and/or they are not discussed prior, what the child will feel is, "This is random! I get random punishments depending on the emotional atmosphere of my dad or my mom. So this is random; this is like a tyrant. I live in a place with a tyrant, and he can cut my head up, tuck my arms up or do whatever he wants depending on his mood." That's how it becomes processed in the mind of the child.

So we can talk about the Kingdom of God. We can talk about freedom and liberty all we want, and we know we are not perfect, but we have to at least be trying to implement this also in the mini kingdom of the family with the mini-priest of the family, and the mini-kingship of the parents. That is a critical place to practice what we are teaching and what we understand of the Kingdom of God!

Don't react!

Now the Queen showed a beautiful video to some folks that were dealing with this issue and in the video the baby is acting nuts. It's a documentary kind of thing, so they got live TV; they got the camera crews following the parents, following the kids- all this kind of stuff to document. The baby's acting crazy. At first the mom's so frustrated. She's always saying, "Why are you crying? Why are you crying? Stop crying!" and all this kind of stuff. Then she later learns, "Don't do that!"

Number 1: your child is acting crazy. Don't react! Don't react! Don't shout, "Stop crying!" Don't give the child attention. Don't be angry. You don't have to start whopping him. Just don't react! The child will cry, the child will cry; the child will cry for about three or four minutes. Some kids go through it for four or five minutes. But there's a point where that will become tiring, and they will realize that acting crazy or crying out like that does not help; they'll start realizing that.

So Mom learned, "Don't react! Don't get emotionally; don't take it personally. Don't react!" Now, when the child calms down then, "Oh, hey baby, you're feeling sad about that situation," or, "Oh you must be feeling stressed. Come here! Mommy's going to hold you!" And then of course explain what the child is feeling to the child, "Oh, you're feeling angry because your sister took your doll? I see Mommy understands. Okay, no problem Baby, we're going to get it back." You see what I'm saying? You don't react like a crazy person, because then it escalated. The child is crying and you react; he's going to cry harder. You react; it's going to get to the point where you want to whoop that child. And if you do, that child's going to react. That's what's going to happen.

Dominion over mind and body

So the point is: what does being a king and priest mean? It means that you have power to be a judge too. Therefore you have to enact proper judgment; you can't act emotionally. Can you imagine if you're in a court of law and the judge is in a bad mood that day and because of his bad mood you're all guilty? Whoever comes in is guilty. Can you imagine? Everybody would be saying, "That's unfair!"

So, it's very important for us to understand the identity of ourselves in Christ. We're not just people; we're not just servants. God makes us kings and priests; He makes us queens and evangelists. Very, very high level; very, very important! So, we can't just behave on our carnal desires. We have to upgrade; we have to step up. That requires training, because we are not born perfect.

That's what Father said: "We have to have DOMINION over our mind and body; UNITY of mind and body." That means if we get ANGRY we have to be able to have dominion over it; we can't let that anger consume us and then we become a seat of anger, because the Devil then will push us to make all sorts of terrible mistakes which will have a long-term consequence for the future.

Now, saying that, remember you don't have to be perfect. Why? Because your children know you're not perfect; especially young parents. Children know you're not perfect, but if you are trying they give you credit for it. Okay? If you're trying they will give you credit for it because they're not evil people. Your children are not evil people; they know when somebody is trying and they know when you're not. Amen! So you don't have to be perfect; you don't have to have a perfect score. By the way no parents can do that.

But the point is: we have to see ourselves in that light; it's very, very, important. We have to see ourselves as kings and priests, and we're raising the children- as Jesus said here - and they have to be future kings and priests. Can you imagine what kind of terrible lessons you're teaching if you're acting out emotionally when they are acting out as fools? You are acting as fool. You are now teaching them to do that as a judge in the future. You see what I'm saying? So it's all tied together.

That's why having dominion over mind and body as Father said is harder than having dominion over the whole universe, especially when the moment is at hand; that moment when your emotions want you to lash out, want you to beat that child or whatever the situation may be. Every parent may feel that, especially the child may aggravate the living shmita out of you.

Now, like in our home the children are all on you, and Daddy's not going to react emotionally. You're acting crazy. I understand because you're a baby. That's what you do when you're young; you act crazy. That's normal. I did too when I was baby; I acted crazy too. No problem. So that said, of course I'm a martial artist. I beat up big people; I don't have to beat up little people. I understand that little people are acting crazy because they're at that age, like everybody. But, as they're growing, obviously they're supposed to understand; they have to now start learning how to communicate properly, respectfully to their parents etc. For example the kids they know they can speak with Mommy but they can't be super disrespectful because Daddy will emerge from somewhere; I will appear from somewhere. If they go too far, I will appear like a ninja out the shadow; I will come out. And they know that they can't get physical. If they DO something physical they're going to GET something physical; they understand that. That's fair; that's fair! Right?

For example: I remember one time one child crying about some issue; crying, crying, crying. So daddy stands there and then the child is trying to get more attention, so he started laying down on the ground, and running around in circles on the ground; you know laying on the side and running like breakdancing. So I watched him: "Oh, that's okay! You're doing some breakdancing! Okay, okay!" I didn't get angry with him. I would never let it get to the point of being angry or upset. Sometimes I would challenge them: "Oh that's it! That's all you have? Oh you've got to cry louder than that, Baby. Cry louder! Come 'on! Louder! That's too small." Then they would be looking like, "What? What's going on here?" They didn't know what was going on.

The point is: I could have - I said I could have- easily controlled a baby. I am a black belt; I can control a grown man. So, easily I can control a baby and I can threaten it and hurt it if I want to. But of course I understand that's going to have long-term bad consequences, not only for these children, but for my ability to interact with them, and of course in the end it's going to have terrible consequences on their relationship with God. Why?

Because as children we look to our father as the symbol of God; of God the Father. If we see in our father, justice, righteousness; if we see him not acting emotionally like a child, but if he always has the highest power of dominion over mind and body, we get a clearer picture of God. It's not saying that everybody's father is God, but as a child he is in the position of the subject, of the family king. So we are looking towards that father, and that father has a massive impetus on our lives.

This is why it's so critical to understand when Christ is talking about the kids... You see this in some church cultures. You talk about this scripture and how Jesus is praising the little children:

"Unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven." These children they're so perfect and pure but everybody knows they're peeing and pooing on the carpet, they're aggravating mommy and daddy; they're throwing tomatoes. Everybody knows that.

So, let's not be foolish; we've got to be real. Children are not perfect. They have certain aspects which have innocence, which are pure; their attitude towards God or faith can be very pure. But that doesn't mean you worship them. They still got to be trained in many other aspects that are weak, poor or where they create sin - which they do. They still have to be trained up; they still have to be raised up.

So just because God is complimenting the children,

37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me," that doesn't mean that the children are perfect. They still need instruction, they still need guidance; they still need training for them to become good jurors and judges and kings and priests in the future. So it's very important that culturally we understand. We see a lot of churches literally worshipping children. From an idealistic perspective, okay, we get it, but realistically it's bad. They're low on so many levels; in many, many levels they're below white belt, not even white belt. So there are many aspects where children need to grow.

But that being said, many times God is pointing in this Scripture to the heart of the child, the faith of the child, and the ability for the child to understand good and evil in a more intuitive way. Those things can be things that even adults can work on. Amen!

Rod of Iron Culture

The point is: every civilization knows that the standard of the child will be the standard of the future. That's why as Rod of Iron kings and priests, it's very important to have the accoutrements of defending the Kingdom, the Rod of Iron, the crown, sovereignty; all that kind of things. But at the same time we have to be also upgrading and leveling up in other aspects that are protecting the Kingdom.

Number 1: Peace Police-Peace Militia, "Love God, love your neighbor," the motto.

Who is your closest neighbor? It's your wife or your husband. Can I get an 'amen' in this place? (Amen!) It's your wife or your husband; that's your closest neighbor right now, or it should be. You shouldn't be sleeping in separate rooms, and things like that, okay, folks?

The point is: strong marriages are key to the Kingdom; strong marriages and strong families are key to the Kingdom. Marriages where you're having faith together in God, but also training to be good kings, good priests and defenders, with queens who are good defenders, good evangelists etc, training together, is so important. Why? Because that's just a precedent for you now to be trained with your children; this is why Father blessed us early at a young age.

See, young people will never know because the state tells you the opposite. They say, "No, no, play, play. Hey, come on! Enjoy life. Waste $200, 000 in college!" You'll be about $200 000 of debt, trying to pay that off. The average college loans are 40k but it could go up to 200 plus depending on the school. But imagine with your average gross income, 40k, how are you, as a young person going to pay that? It's going to take a long time to pay that back? How are you going to pay off 40k? It's a big hole that you just dug yourself into, especially if you have not studied something that has technical worth in the market, like engineering or being a doctor, etc. For those things you may need a certain type of training but you are much better off training as an apprentice in the market place in a profession or a place you want to get into, in the pathway that you want to go it.

It would be much better training as an apprentice whether it's investing, whether it's marketing, whether it's trading, or whether it's plumbing, or electric; it doesn't matter. It's much better to train from experts instead of getting bad advice from people who don't even exist in those industries i.e college Marxist professors; there are five times more atheists in their midst than in the normal population, and they have a giant bias towards any type of faith.

Whereas in the real work you work under an engineer, you work under an electrician who is not like that. You may find some atheists but you also find very capable engineers and electricians that are theists. It's not going to be this massively outweighed disparity that you're going to find in the sheltered egg cocoon fake reality fishbowl of a university in the western world. Which has become a total joke and indoctrination centers, for not only Marxism but also for what? Free sex culture; to destroy children's views on sexuality.

They're young, their hormones are raging; they want to have sex with everything especially the boys. "You're animals, you're beasts; just do it! You have to enjoy; just enjoy it!" It's hedonism, pleasure, pleasure, pleasure! It just becomes Pleasure Island and all you are seeking, your whole purpose becomes centered around entertainment, pleasure and what gets you off. This actually is hell, because it's slavery and it doesn't need to happen; it's a dead-end circle. Of course pleasure and hedonism will never lead to anything other than the degradation of your personality. This is qualified and proven for example in studies on pornography where males who watch pornography will have about 70% erectile dysfunction. You understand what I'm saying? This is the reality based on actual studies.

So the point is: this kind of free-sex culture doesn't lead to long term enjoyment, obviously. It leads to destruction; it hurts your ability to maintain long-term relationships- which is great for the political Satanists. They want you to be a mess; they want your life to be jammed. They want you to be dysfunctional in every human relationship so you fail at most things, and thus you're easier to control. You will be willing to suck on the government tits; you will be willing to go to the government, "I need help." Why? Because you failed at so many things due to bad guidance from these political Satanists. What did you learn about slave mentality, "Go into debt, go into debt; play, play, play, play!"

Be fruitful, multiply & have dominion

But when you were young what if you learned? "NO!

Think about the future!

Think about dominion about mind and body!

Think about training, being healthy, being physically fit and strong; being able to defend yourself! Think about investing in assets, understanding assets and liabilities!"

Instead of wasting your time in debt why don't you make a goal of being a land owner by 21, a house owner by 22- 23- 24? You'll already then be ahead by 40 years of the normal person who owns a house at 60; you're already 40 years ahead of them AND you're not in debt. Why aren't you thinking about these things instead of watching all the music videos with the money raining down from heaven? PAPER money is not money, and kings all know that.

There's not one royal family on this planet that educates their children to hoard paper; not one! The only people who teach that are people who want that civilization to be slaves. There's no royal family, even a satanic one that teaches their own children to aggregate paper; not one, not one, not one. What do they teach their kids instead? Gold, silver, lead, arms, land, relationships, networks; they are teaching them not what they teach the normal person whom they see as a slave. To them they're teaching paper money, but to their own children they are teaching assets!

Now, that's why the Cheon Il Guk Kingdom culture is so important. We have to teach our kids assets not paper. We have to be teaching them how to become sovereign people, how to defend sovereignty, how to HAVE sovereignty. We have to be teaching them that in the future God wants you to what? "Be fruitful, multiply and have dominion over creation." He wants you to also OWN creation.

True Father & Nature

People don't understand this about Father: we were walking around with the Lord of the Second Advent and most people saw Father in a suit doing a public event. Do you understand that was literally less than one percent of his life; less than one percent? Where was most of Father's time spent? I attended Father until the end; day in and day out, every single DAY, every single DAY- 365, seven days a week, and 24/7! That means I was on stand-by 24/7 like an emergency room doctor or something; 24/7. I'd get the call; I'd go- whatever it was.

When Father did a 23 and a half hour sermon, we were there; we were passed out, but we were there. (Laughing) He went to bed for ONE HOUR, and two hours later, at 6:30 am, we were on the boat FISHING! So the majority of other times when he wasn't speaking in Hoon Dok Hae setting to a small group of persons, the majority of his time was in nature; was in NATURE, was in nature, nature, nature, not indoors.

Yes we had the big Cheongpyeong palace which has become a den of devils and just a big building with Satan there now. Unbelievable! Oh, my Gosh! It's so sad! We told everybody and of course nobody believed us but now you're seeing it for yourself. You've seen the picture of the Han mother? No Father; there's no Father there! She's there with the scepter and she's there all alone worshipping herself. So sad! Of course we knew it was going to go that way, because we had encountered all that. But of course it took time for the public to realize that was the case; it took many years because those things came out of our own mouth over time.

The point is: we had this big building but Father didn't like to be there. We would be to Gomun-do and we would spend most of our time outdoors; we'd be outdoors, we'd be outside. That's why the kids in Sunday school should not be inside; they should be outside. Outside! Why? Because children are not perfect and they need to have interaction with God's creation. Why? Because you learn some critical lessons when you interact with nature:

#1: you are not God and you're not going to control His work. Amen!

We got good weather today, but when it's bad weather! Ooh! Everybody's praying. No, you can't control it.

#2- You learn quickly that there are CONSEQUENCES to your actions. If you are not prepared properly you are going to be in a world of hurt and that world of hurt can lead to bacterial infection, fungal affection. It can lead to gangrene; you may need an amputation. It can land all sorts of terrible things when you're out in the wild. Something as simple as not bringing a jacket or an insulated layer can put you into hyperthermal shock and you can DIE; hyperthermia is the leading cause of death in the wild.

So people understand that in nature you learn about consequences. You learn you are not in control; you learn you HAVE to prepare if you want to enjoy it. There is a cost to enjoying the natural world. You have to prepare, you have to try to understand the patterns and you have to train yourself up so if you need it you can succeed, and it becomes an inconvenient night of camping rather than you dying frozen on the mountain side. Amen!

Summers with Father in the Amazon Jungle

So there's power in the pedagogical experience with nature. That's why Father was always outside. Folks asked me to share more about these things. When we were younger we had to go to the Amazon jungle. That's probably why I love animals; I love all sorts of animals: birds, reptile, snakes and dogs. I raise fish. I love animals. Think about this: where did I get this TOTAL fascination with raising animals, for husbandry?

I think I got it because when I was in my teams every summer for three months at a time, we had to go to Brazil to the Amazon jungle, Pantanal, Matto Grosso. Total countryside, no buildings, no big construction; none! It's Amazon, Brazil! Dark thick canopies, jungle vines, anacondas, alligators everywhere. And we had to spend time three months at a time during the summers with Father there.

We had to be on the boats till 9 o'clock at night. In my boat was me, my brother Young J-hyung who was one year older, and Hitoshi-san one of the Japanese brothers. So we had a small little dinky boat and we were fishing. And for a child who was 12 -13 years old it is the most aggravating, most difficult thing; to sit still, especially if you're a boy. To be on a boat just waiting! It's terrible, it's torturous and you're in the baking sun. You think this is hot? In the Amazon jungle, it's hot, hot, hot; super humid. All day long on the Amazon River from six in the morning all the way to nine in the evening! We couldn't go in before sunset.

It drove us young boys crazy! So we would be sneaking off the row boat; if we turned on the engine we would get caught, so we had to go to row boat. You had to start rowing and try to break from the group a little bit. Then we would try to get out into the places where the alligators would play. There were openings into big plateaus and the alligators would come up and you'd see their little eyes pop up and then they'd disappear. One of the games that my brother and I did was "alligator whack a mole." You know like in the arcade you'd hit the ball on the head? This time it is with alligators and it's not a game; it's real. You hit him with a fishing pole. This saved these young boys from boredom! I am so grateful for the alligators! If it wasn't for the alligators, we would have gone CRAZY on that boat! But thank God we had some alligator friends to play with, whacking them on their head and they would be running away. That didn't hurt the alligators at all; they're very tough animals- they're tough. But they would just run away. It was exhilarating, it was fun; it was awesome!

Also another time I remember there was a little waterfall. We had just got to the Amazon, and we started swimming in that river because it was so hot. Later on we heard that unfortunately a young person had died there, because of the water coming in creating a vortex, something like a whirlpool.

And we were swimming there. We were told later that there were stingrays in the Amazon jungle, on the sand. What were we doing? We were swimming and had the brilliant idea of walking and swimming down the Amazon jungle; this deep (up to our neck). When it is this deep, you just walk, and we were walking on the sand not knowing there were stingrays, and with one stingray, you're dead. One sting; you die!

Little did we know that there were alligators in the water everywhere, and I remember when we sprang off the vines, jumping into the water, there was a brown snake with red patterns on it. Now that I know different snake species etc, what species of snake is brown with red patterns like red circles on it? Well that's the friendly anaconda, one of the biggest constricting snakes on the planet and that was swimming right here.

So there were so many things that we didn't think about, that we weren't prepared for, and when I think about it in retrospect I think, "Oh my Gosh! Wow! We dodged many bullets on that one," because God's hedge of protection was on us. There's this feeling of gratitude, this feeling of awe, feeling like, "Oh, my Gosh! We should have been dead but we survived it!" And we survived it because we were under Father's protection. That doesn't mean you want to test that like you want to jump into an alligator's mouths or something like that. Don't do stupid things! "Thou shalt not test the Lord thy God." (Luke 4:12) That's what Jesus said.

But we survived. And thinking about those things, what did Father do? He would spend so much time in nature. Every time he would come from Cheongpyeong to Hannam-dong when we were there, he wanted to see all the animals come out; he wanted to see the reptiles and the snakes and the birds, and he wanted to see the dogs running around; he wanted to see that. He enjoyed the natural world so much. Why?

The Garden of Eden

Why is it important? It's important because it also teaches you about Genesis when Adam and Eve were in the Garden of Eden. God had created the animal kingdom, the plant kingdom to do what? Support Adam and Eve. Now, how important is that? Because when you are raising children it then becomes important for you to understand this context. That's what we were talking about Wednesday with the young people. Raising animals as you're raising your children, is extremely healthy for the pedagogy of the children, for their understanding on how to care for something, understanding different species, understanding different care requirements, different water parameters for this fish or that fish. You don't need to go into detail.

The point is: they understand something greater when they start interacting with nature. That # 1: they didn't create all this. They are not God but there is a God who loves them and has provided this world for them. Why is that important? Because that's TIED to SOVEREIGNTY, folks! You understand? When you become a landowner, and all the kings and priests have to become landowners. And all the young people too. When you're young, your goal has to be to become a landowner. You have to be landowner; you must own part of the earth. That's part of having sovereignty. Very, very important!

And not only do you own a plot of land, but how do you maximize that so that it becomes a blessing to your family, blessing to all the people there, but also that it incorporates the layers of the Garden of Eden that is plants and animals and things of the natural world in a synergistic way so that it thrives and becomes blessings to your family, your children, your progeny. This is very important. So we're talking with the young people about animal husbandry, and learning how to properly care for animals. This is a great training. You may start raising horses. Your kids may not want to raise horses but through that training they'll have knowledge about raising animals. They may go to reptiles; that's okay. But my point is: they're still incorporating God's creation into their family LIFE; that's an important part because that's the model of the Garden of Eden. The Garden of Eden incorporates the animal kingdom into family life. Amen! Isn't that interesting? So that's why it's important.

We were explaining to the young people that with the king and queen in the Kingdom wherever we go there are many things that come with us. There comes authority, there comes power, there comes sovereignty, there comes the ability to put fear into the evil, the wicked. That's where the Rod of Iron comes in; that's where training comes into play. All those kinds of things are critically important. But also what comes with the king or the queen in the Kingdom of God - who is a Peace Police -Peace Militia man and a Peace Police -Peace Militia woman - what also comes with that is not only the fear we give to the enemies but also what? Life; life comes.

It's like in the movies, you see the character walking and with each step life springs up; trees, grass etc. Everywhere you go, a king or a queen of the Kingdom should be bringing that life. So even in our home, as a husband we may not be thinking about plants and raising animals, but as a king, in our kingdom, it's not only a kingdom of rock and stone and iron and buildings. It's also a place which has plants, animals, thriving rainforests, thriving oxygen; these types of things.

So incorporate those elements into your life! Start learning how to care for plants. Bringing plants into your house not only increases oxygen in your home, and increases beauty in your home. What is it also doing? It also starts training you for what? Gardening, which is very manly; it's very important to be able to produce your own food. That's very manly. You catch your own food and produce it; you do both. You can trap it, you can shoot it and you can grow it; very manly, very manly stuff, and it was common knowledge for every man to have, even just a hundred years ago.

By learning how to care for plants you learn generally how to care for farming. You start the beginnings of your horticultural knowledge, farming knowledge, agricultural knowledge, and it will increase from there.

But also you'll be REPLICATING the model of the animal and plant kingdom doing what? Supporting Adam and Eve, where? In the Garden! It's not just a random place; this is supposed to be the idyllic place. It's a garden, right? So it's a critical model and it's important to be incorporating these elements into your world as young king and young queen. Are you with me, young people?

Discursive sites

Also if you understand psychological studies, there are studies on discursive sites when you're raising children. Discursive sites are places where you can put your attention and it prevents people from being overly aggressive towards one another. For example if you raise African cichlids which are a type of fish. They're beautiful fish, and they're very aggressive so you only raise them with other aggressive fish, okay. And not only that but you actually can overstuff the fish tank; you can put many of them in. Why? Because one wants to fight with this dude, but then he moves away and there's another guy swimming there, then he'll start fighting with this guy. So what's happening? That's taking the stress load off of the one guy and it's now dispersing that stress load through the whole tank. It's crazy, isn't it? If you only have two and one is aggressive and one is passive, the aggressive one will KILL the weaker one because of the aggression; just by harassing. But if you have African cichlids populating that tank, because there are many of them, they will become discursive sites for each other so they can't hide and focus on one person.

Now when you're raising children - I know they're not fish - the point is: it's the same thing. Children have that tendency. Why? Because they're smaller and it's convenient; if they go to public schools and they're constantly taught, "You're a victim," or, "Your skin color makes you privileged; your skin color makes you bad." BLM Marxist training for preschoolers now is taking place in the US. It's just insanity!

Look, we all believe that black lives matter. Amen! We believe in that statement "Black lives matter." Isn't it right? We all do. But that organization is openly Marxist; that organization had on their website, "We come to challenge and basically get rid of the black heterogeneous family." They called them hetero-normative families. And two of their founders are open Marxists; they brag about being Marxists. So that's the problem. They're there to divide the black community, separate the parents from the children, separate the men from the women, et cetera. They're into 'divide and conquer', and that is bad stuff.

The point is: discursive strikes are very important when you're raising kids, because as people are fallen, they are susceptible to the lure of Satan to start believing that they are victims. "I am victim to my mommy and my daddy who are always looming over me" and this kind of thing. So it's very important that they also have discursive sites. That could be activities, that could be extracurricular things that they learn; that could be different things, but it also can be things in your immediate home like a dog, a puppy dog. Anyone who raises a puppy dog knows, and people won't believe me until you raise a small dog that actually lives in your house. This puppy dog takes so much; it diffuses so much tension. It's incredible! There are studies on veterans with PTSD for example who have canine companions; there are actual studies that show the benefits of raising animals.

The point is: even in family it is stressful, and when they're younger, your kids are constantly trying to find a reason to feel like a victim, because as a victim they may feel like they're accomplishing something, that they're being heroic and they're being epic and they're standing up to some type of oppressive thing. You see what I'm saying? And that's how the Marxists just lure them in and they're getting this brainwashing force; they're going on the yellow bus going to indoctrinating Nazi camps. Which any parents should not be doing because you're the parents you're not their friend, and you can make decisions not to send them to the Nazi camps. That's what we did in our family.

But by the point: if they're in those Nazi camps where they're learning Neo-Marxism through the Left and the 85% of teachers that are leftist, well then they're going to come out with some terrible, terrible damage, and they're going to be incentivized and applauded and even celebrated on social media networks for being victims. So that victim card becomes real big money; it becomes REAL big money. And how do you play that? It's easy to get kids to say, "Oh, you've been such a victim under your parents, and your parents should have tried harder." Now, there are bad parents of course; there are bad parents in the world, but there are also many GOOD PARENTS in the world that get blamed by their kids that were indoctrinated into the victim card mentality to attack their parents.

So the point is: if you have that situation well then when the child is feeling those things, the animal can actually play as a buffer zone, what's known as a discursive site; it can diffuse the tension between the child and the parent or the brother and sister or whomever. Siblings can have tension and many times it can defuse the tension between brother and brother, or sister and sister. Why? Because they don't have to hyper focus on somebody else. They can see this adorable puppy dog and they hold it and it's so cute; they can get focus on that instead of falling into the trap where Satan wants them to go. You see what I'm saying?

Applying the teaching of the Scripture

So the point is: we've got to be very cognizant. There's many things in the Bible that have many layers to them, but many times we just read over it, we hear about it, but we don't put the pieces together, and we don't try to apply it. How many people do we know that are going to read it and then say, "Oh, I got to include them in my family?" Not so many, not so many.

But the point is: we should be doing that; we should be because there's great wisdom including the natural world. Not only are we going out into the natural, exploring and training, which are very important things, but also you should be bringing that outdoors INTO your landscape, your atmosphere, your place of dominion to bring the positive and very important elements of the natural into your ruling area. Why?

Because they provide not only many health benefits, not only psychological benefits, but they are also places of learning where it becomes a doorway that opens to horticulture, agriculture, making organic foods, literally growing money out of the ground, learning about assets, learning how to train your children, and developing greenhouses, etc. It opens up into a whole new landscape of learning and EDUCATION that the place where the Nazi yellow school bus is going is not going to teach you. Amen!

So the point is: when we are studying the Scripture we can see these things. We can see that Jesus is very angry in verse 42.

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones... The Greek word for 'offend' is σκανδαλιση skandalisē and that means to cut off; it means to separate.

So, basically: "And whosoever shall CUT OFF one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea." So we know that Christ has a special love for the children in the Kingdom. He values the children, he wants to protect those children; he wants them to remain in relationship with him and to understand what? That in the future they're not just things that the state educates; they're not just good citizens that obey all the laws. No! They'll understand something much better than that. They'll understand that they have a relationship with God Almighty and the King of Kings, and through that relationship - and not through the goodness of their own actions - but that through His love and His immense grace we are given the opportunity to be kings of priests as well. And that comes with responsibility; that doesn't just come with titles so we can brag and boast and be egotistical about it.

No, it comes with a responsibility. That's why the Kingdom is all about freedom and what it is the other one? Responsibility, right! "Love God, love your neighbor." It's not about just doing whatever you want. No! It's about freedom but also responsibility. That means that you may not LIKE your neighbor, you may not like his dog, his lawn, the way he parks his car. You may not like that, and he may make you angry, but you will still protect him as a responsible citizen in the Kingdom of God if he needed it. You will STILL be that Peace Police- Peace Militia man and woman that shepherds and who will help one of the sheep if they need help; even though you don't feel like helping that person or you don't feel like helping that sheep. Amen!

So the point is: there are many layers in the Scripture that we come across and we can see and understand that this is applicable in our daily life in very, very small but very important ways. And nothing is guaranteed. Why? Because there's free will; there are different levels of training, so nothing's guaranteed, but this is guaranteed. It's better if you TRY something and try properly. You could try it with a bad technique and learn something bad. But try with a good technique, and even though you may not be getting the top result, you're definitely going to do better than if you didn't try at all.

That is why as you're raising your kids, it is very important to not let them have emotional dominion over you. You're the parents, you're the king, you're the queen; YOU must have dominion over that atmosphere. That means not reacting emotionally, that means if the kid, the baby is freaking out, you're calm, you're chilled. You understand there's nothing wrong with your baby; that's the only way they communicate. It's not personal; it has nothing to do with cursing you or shouting at you or anything like that. No it's just how the baby is testing his boundaries, and that child needs to learn that it is not effective, and that talking with Mommy and Daddy is going to be better. But calm down! Wait for the child calm down, and then there's the empathy, there's the consoling, there's, "Oh my baby is sad because your sister stole your ham sandwich! I get it. We're going to make you another one plus mayonnaise, and you're going to get this drink on top of that." The point is: to apply this in normal day life is absolutely critical!

The Beast system

Now the Marxists - we talked about it - they understand this; they want to get control of your children. The Department of Education in the Beast system has been one of the most devastating and destructive forces in America, that is teaching un-American values, that is teaching the hatefulness of Christianity; that is teaching that all western civilization is evil, that it's white supremacy, and all this kind of stuff. That's done by the Department of Education. Why? Because they understand that kids should not be learning how to become a king and a priest, a queen and evangelist. No, they should be learning how to be compliant slaves of the state.

That's why mandates are put in place worldwide with governments FORCING five-year-old children and some even in preschools, forcing them to muzzle and wear masks, suffocating children at five years old. Because they know psychologically that any child who receives that type of trauma would not be able to breathe, being suffocated slowly all throughout the day; being forced to do it and having the parents supporting that, reinforcing that behavior. And what is the behavior in the end? Compliance to the state; it creates utter slaves of those children.

That is happening worldwide but people are waking up. You see the truckers now. Praise God for the truckers (Applause) all throughout Canada and the US, going to protest against Trudeau, that despicable tyrant and truly a white supremacist that is totally oppressing the Canadian people up North! This unbelievably disgusting Commie!

The point is: look at all those people standing up against him! Look at all the people waking up! Look at all the people listening to Joe Rogan who has now Dr. Malone and Dr. McCullough and all these top scientists talking about the dangers of the vaccine! Look at the new Indian studies that are coming out of the top two science universities in India, that are publishing data showing that the spike protein has something that looks similar to HIV delivery systems which is the reason why Australia pulled the vax, because people were getting false positives for HIV. Scientists who express their views against vaccination are banned on Twitter because it is owned by Pfizer.

So folks, unbelievable things are happening. Negative? Yes, worldwide lockdowns imploding the economy. Yes! But positive too: people will not continue to take it. Now, what goes on when that happens? Well, when the weather turns warmer, what happens? That's when you have summers of love, which means that's when you have crazy things starting to happen, because people are waking up. The government is being recognized more and more as being the criminal, being a group that is protecting criminals like Fauci; people who are promising this and that, who are ordering and forcing Americans and the worldwide community to be on the lockdown. Which had no statistical benefit, and they even tell, "Masks, oh they didn't help," and all this kind of craziness. But they would use the state and the police, the apparatus of the state, to force it.

And that's of course where you're seeing people who are not presenting vax IDs in New York being arrested; black women with cerebral palsy being arrested because they're not showing their papers. I thought it was racist to ask for a voter ID! Why is it not racist to ask for a vax ID? I thought black people can't have access to IDs! So ridiculous! But no, no, no, no, now white police in America, in New York City, in liberal areas can kick out black people because they don't show their papers! Whoa! Talk about different race standards! Unbelievable!

But, people are waking up. They're seeing through the veneer. They're seeing the breakdown of the lies, of the narrative, coming up. They're seeing that the numbers are starting to collapse. Certain nations are opening up and like Norway, having the corona virus categorized as a common cold.

What could be coming next

So things are going to happen, and you would like to be hopeful. Unfortunately the problem is what? You're dealing with psychopaths. You're dealing with people who are committing MASSIVE international crimes against humanity, and if they allow their opponents to take power what happens to them? They will be tried in court, and they will be hung on the gallows. It will be the Nuremberg trials all over again. Fauci is up there like Dr. Mengele being put up on trial for crimes against humanity, killing millions of people. Bill Gates as well! They know what's coming, folks, because all of these lies and the forcefulness they use to force people to destroy their lives, break down their businesses, make everybody poor and collapse the First World into the Third World. They've done it; they've done irreparable damage to the world!

So they know that the midterms coming up are critical, and they know they can't let it happen. That's why you now hear whispers of the NEW coronavirus, and they say, "Oh it's not connected to Covid 19 but it's actually connected to the MERS virus." Okay, well it is coronavirus and it is connected to the MERS virus; that's what they say. The WHO just last week announced that there's a new type of NeoCovid that is associated with the MERS virus and is now spreading in South Africa. They say that it's only one mutation away from attaching to your H2 receptor and becoming a live communicable disease in human beings. Now, what they're saying with this next one is: if Covid 19 had a 1.3% mortality rate, this new one associated with the MERS virus has 35% mortality rate- which means one out of three people.

The trustable WHO had promised, "After two weeks you'll get back your sovereignty. Put on a mask, no mask; no mask, mask; no mask, mask; one mask, two masks!" These people - these are the same people- they're promising, promising, "There is no danger, no danger to human beings"; even though it's now being researched at the Wuhan laboratory. Isn't that comforting, folks?

Now, when they're telegraphing this kind of thing in these publications, obviously they're doing their due diligence and they're doing their legal liability talking points, that it is safe, "We don't believe this is a threat to humans. Right now all we see is that it is transferring between bat species, but it is potentially one mutation away"; which is what it means! It means they already have the weapon; that's what it means. They have the weapon, and they're just telegraphing it to the rest of them, the Bill Gates and the Zuckerbergs and the Soros and the Bezos, telling everybody, "We have this insurance card; if you need it, we have it," and it's not 1.3% that will die, but it's 35 to 70% that will die. Now, because they always overestimate, it's probably around 10-12%, but that still will be devastating.

Imagine, folks, if the next round comes up before the midterms? They know that if Republicans get back into power they're going to be on the gallows because capital punishment will be given, so they are scrambling to do anything.

And of course you understand these people are complete psychopaths; they're completely in line with Satan. They have NO BOUNDARIES. They are the types of people that are in pedophilia clubs, raping children and cannibalizing, even eating children, like Edward Heath who was a necrophile and raped dead children. That came out in the police reports after he died. They protected him when he was alive, since he was prime minister in Britain, but it came out after he was dead.

This is the class of demons and Satanists that are telegraphing this. So let's take one step back and imagine: The Covid 19 had a mortality rate of 1.3 % and it shut down the entire world, devastated every single continent on the planet; world level judgment, world level suffering, total eradication of sovereignty and human rights, and total eradication of the autonomy of mind and body since now certain countries are mandating the death shots. Things you'd never believe, things you've always thought were from right-wing conspiracy theorists that were trying to make you scared, and were like Nazi. No, no! Now, you've all seen it. Now, you've all experienced it, and you've seen what's happening throughout the world.

Imagine if the next wave they put out is 35% death rate, even if it's just 10%! Imagine how dangerous that would be! If you didn't wear a mask, people would literally SHOOT you; they would shoot you if you didn't wear a mask! People would see you coming on the road, and if you didn't wear a mask, they would shoot you! At that level people would shoot back at the cops trying to get them for this or that. They wouldn't let the cops come near them. All society would literally break down! That's the thing that people don't realize: the unbelievably thin veneer of civility that can be torn in an instant.

Now these people have perpetrated international crimes against humanity; they've committed genocide through the death-shot, vaccine which is now being shown as having HIV delivery system put in them, and about the spike protein, Dr McCullough and Dr Robert Malone have been talking in exhaustive length about how you cannot clear it out of your body, and about all these TERRIBLE effects it has on your T-cells and on your non-homologous end joining, your DNA repair system and on your immune system, and all those kind of things.

But that was only 1.3%! Imagine if the next wave hits with from 10-12 to 35%! Now I'm not telling this to scare you, folks; we don't do that. But it's important to understand the enemy, the Devil, the demonic force we're fighting. Not to fall into false hope, because that were the people who died early in concentration camps. They were the ones who said, "I'm going to be free next Wednesday!" Not this type of false hope!

You must understand the enemy you're fighting. You saw it with your own eyes; the last two years they've broken every international law, they've broken every human rights' law; they've overstepped their jurisdiction on EVER FRONT in every part of the world including the western WHITE world. You have a reservoir of actual evidence the last two years. These people have broken the law; they act with impunity, and they can do whatever they want. They also are internationally organized, and they actually are an international cabal- which Father was talking about for how many decades.

Be ready & have faith

The point is: it is foolish to hope that everything will just get better. "In spring the flowers will come up and the corona virus will be gone. We can go shopping again; the businesses will be open. Let's just pretend; let's just be all out and just pretend!" People like to come to church and pretend. I DON'T LIKE that! I don't like that kind of church! I don't like coming to church and pretend. We want our people to be successful kings and priests, successful queens and evangelists. That means you have to be ready to face the enemy; you have to be ready for the spiritual warfare. You have to be ready for the opposition, for the hatred, for scorn, for the crucifixion, for the death that people wish upon you. You have to be READY for that, and in the end that's not a thing that should make us slump; it should be a driving force to give glory to God.

It should be a driving force to say, "Hey, I want to help other people. I want to help people wake up and prepare; I want them to be positioned for success." Like our children, we try to help position our children for success; whatever it may be, we help them. Same thing: we want any of our people to be positioned at least for the best; mentally preparing for these scenarios, thinking about these things. Why? Because they could become a reality just like the last two years of the nightmare of Covid- 19. Now, what would that mean? If something that heavy was hitting, communities would have to literally quarantine themselves. Communities would not be able to let any new people in, unless they were vetted, tested. Communities would have to go shopping with a hazmat suit. You understand how crazy it's going to become if there's something like that?

Now we've seen instances of that kind of craziness in the last two years, but if you have something that's communicable, spreading fast like the common cold with 35%, even 10% mortality! Whoa! Everybody will know somebody who has been killed; everybody will know somebody who is dying from that bio- weapon.

The point is: as the people of God, we have to hold fast to God, hold on to His garment, and have faith. See, we have assurance that God's Kingdom will come. We know that God is going to win at the end, but He promised us that there's going to be tribulation. And what we want to do is welcome this time of tribulation.

God is not taking it away because the tribulation is there:

*for us to grow and mature,

*for us to increase our faith,

*for us to love our neighbor even more;

*for us to try to prepare and help people in the same desperate love fashion that God does to save humanity.

It's all about training us, and we can use that situation instead of saying, "Oh my Gosh! It's so terrible! Pastor Sean is talking about a 35% death rate coming up next!" That's not what I'm talking about. Yes I am partially, but the larger point is: even if that does come, a lot of it is in God's hand but some of it is in our hands. Our five percent is still there; it depends on what we will do. What we are preparing for our children, how we are trying to not have our emotions having dominion over us and acting crazy and paranoid, but having a rational preparedness mindset even if that type of situation happens.

Heavy responsibility as kings and queens

Now, imagine if that is really what happens. You would have so many unbelievably difficult emotional heart streams pulling situations, right. You have parents that would say, "Oh my child has just come back from this or that city. They don't believe in God but they're my child." That parent is going to be asking for that person to be included in that community. You understand? You understand what's happening? What will happen at that point if there's really something as bad as a 35% death rate, killing one out of three people?

Many communities will say, "No, we cannot put the community that we have here at risk to include your child, whom unfortunately you didn't train or you didn't educate before and has been skeptical about everything, but now that it's so bad they're trying to run back home." You see how that window closes; it can get very, very bad very quickly. And the communities for example that are emotionally dominated, and say, "Oh, we have to let them in," those communities will have that disease pass through them very quickly. So you understand how much high-level metathinking the communities will have to be doing looking at the benefit from a large scale, not from an emotional personal level, "That person I know is my friend or my sister." No, they'll have to be thinking on the macro level.

Whoa! This is one of the hard parts, folks. This is one of the hard parts about a king and a queen. Let me tell you what one of the hard parts is: this is to try to make judgment non-emotionally. If your child committed a crime, are you going to judge that crime as if that child was not your child, or are you going to judge that crime as if he were a child and you'd let him off? You see? Most people who are dominated by emotions you will choose to judge your child based on emotions, and you'll let them off the hook. But what does that do then to justice in your kingdom? It collapsed; you've now destroyed justice. How difficult if your child commits a crime, and now you have to prosecute that crime or you have to put it in the hand of the juries, and whatever they decide, they decide! How hard it is to see your child! Let's say they committed a bad, bad crime and that child has to now receive capital punishment. How hard it is! Yes, it's heart-wrenching; it's hard!

But as a king and as a queen and somebody who has a responsibility to the kingdom... you understand? People like being king and queen because they get that title, but they don't understand it comes with heart-wrenching PAINFUL decisions, responsibility, being blamed for many things but still having to pursue the right decision of righteousness. Are you with me, folks? This is the hard part you see. It's not just about being respected. No, a lot of hard decisions, and every decision being weighed in the Meta context of the kingdom, and every decision that is made bad, the level of the kingdom falls.

Just like every judge in America that cheats because they're leftists and the guys are leftists and BLM and Antifa are leftists and they burn down cities but let it go, that ruins America, folks. You see? Even though they EMOTIONALLY want to support that party, they want to support that movement, they want to support whatever it may be, and they are destroying America and the jurisprudence that exists within it. We're all angry about that but we're not angry about it if it is in our kingdom. You see what I'm saying? That's the hard part. That's the hard part about being a king and a priest and of course a queen and evangelist. Absolutely critical!

So, think about that! You have to mentally prepare for those things because if they escalate- which they have been - they've been escalating two years with the Covid. Then people are waking up and fighting back and they're doing big protests; sometimes a million are gathering. There are going to be new rallies in DC. People are going to feel hope again, and Trump is now on the road doing the MAGA rallies again. Now the weather is getting better, people are going to start moving and feeling hope. The weather is warming up, oh so now they have to escalate. You see? And as they escalate, what will be their next move?

In that situation we have to be praying very hard. We have to be anticipating things. You can't plan for everything but you can THINK about different scenarios; nothing wrong with that. You can plan mentally for different DIFFICULT, emotionally terribly difficult heart-wrenching scenarios that you may have to be the person deciding about. You understand, folks? And it's easy to just say, "Oh, let the Second King decide!" No, no, no! I may not be in that decision process; it may be happening in YOUR HOUSE. If it's something's bad like that and you're quarantining in your house and you've got this or that cousin coming out of nowhere saying they want to stay with you, and now you have your grandchildren in your house. You see? It's not only going to be ME making those decisions; it will be YOU, folks as well.

And this is why it's important holding on to the standards. Being king and queen, priest and evangelist doesn't come with just glory; it comes with HEAVY burden and heavy consequences, heavy responsibilities. If you don't make good decisions for your kingship line it will die out, because most of your children will follow Satan and leave God's side and become part of Satan's culture. You will lose that kingship line that God had given to you.

So, the point is: every king and queen of the kingdom of God has to understand we are firstly invested in having the strongest marriages, strongest families, happy powerful, investing into those relationships; training together, but also helping other people because other people's future destiny is also tied with us.

We got to help as many successful husband and wife

- *become successful parents,
- *become successful Adam and Eve,
- *become successful kings and priests,
- *become successful queens and evangelists,
- *become successful protectors,
- *become capable in all those things.

The more people we can bring into the Kingdom in that way, the stronger the WHOLE community will become. Are you with me, folks?

That's why it's so critical as God is providing these opportunities and preparing our range, that when folks come we are like God's love, meaning we are happy, we are excited to see them. Not only to stay but then for them to become more like God, become empowered, become stronger, become better protectors, become better kings and queens, all those things. And then we can be celebrating with God AS people are growing, going through the ups and downs but still growing and becoming as a community, as a network a more powerful prosperous, a more righteous, more holy Kingdom. It doesn't mean we are perfect, but it means that we are constantly searching after God and constantly working on ourselves. Amen!

So, folks! Yes, there are good things happening around the world. Praise God for that! Let's always remember to praise God for that, and to be excited about that.

But at the same time let's not forget the enemy that we are fighting and the potential things that may come down the line before midterms; false flag attacks, new bio weapons, crazy stuff. We have to be ready for it all. We can't do it alone. We have to rely on God most, but we have our 5% and it is incumbent on us to pray and to act with His power.

Pastor Sean's Prayer

Father God, we thank You for this day that You've blessed us with. Father, we thank You for the word and how You desire and want to protect the children and the next generation. Let us be those types of Rod of Iron kings and queens that are training hard, practicing hard, reading hard, praying hard so that our children understand the environment and the atmosphere of the Kingdom; that they understand justice and righteousness, they understand non-emotionality and transcend the emotional realm to go into the realm of Your HEART which seeks to give liberty, justice, PEACE and righteousness to mankind; but of course because of our sins we keep on rejecting it.

Dear God, we repent of those sins; we want to turn away from those sins. It's critical that we become enamored with the Father, the alpha male that we need in our lives; the absolute loving sacrificial but powerful and dangerous alpha male that we NEED in order that we become better men and better women, better sons and better daughters. We absolutely need you, dear God, and through that relationship You are forming us; You're recreating us with the Holy Spirit that You send in our lives, that blows within us and that strengthens our conscience and brings it up more to the forefront, so that we are COMPELLED by the Holy Spirit to seek to empower and love other people.

Not in the flaky type of love that the leftists talk about! No, but to see them come out of sin and into kingship; to see them come out of the servitude of Satan, the Devil to come into the Kingdom of God as an anointed priest and a king and a queen and an evangelist. To see their life and their purpose completely transformed, resurrected and made new in YOU, because it's through You that all things are obtained.

Dear God, we ask that You bless America at this critical time. You bless the patriots as they are waking up, but You also bless us with proper discernment, that we may be constantly AWARE of the enemy that we are fighting. We know that there are more waves of tribulation coming down the line. We are not foolish with our optimism but we are always hopeful with the TRUE optimism that Your Kingdom is coming. That does not prevent us from preparing, that does not prevent us from training, that does not prevent us from fellowshiping; that does not prevent us from praying. In fact we do it all, and we do it to bring You joy knowing that we are investing in Your mission and Your purpose, knowing that Your children are standing with You on the battle line instead of watching from the sidelines.

We are standing with You, God, we are standing with You, Father, we are standing with You, Jesus, and we are here for You at Your disposal as Your hands and feet.

So we thank You for what You're doing today. We thank You for Mark chapter 9 and we pray blessings upon America and upon the future because in the end Your children WILL rise up.

Your Cheon Il Guk children WILL rise up
