2nd King's Response to Rolling Stone Hit Piece

The Lord is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; he knows those who take refuge in him. But with an overflowing flood he will make a complete end of the adversaries, and will pursue his enemies into darkness. What do you plot against the Lord? He will make a complete end; trouble will not rise up a second time. For they are like entangled thorns, like drunkards as they drink; they are consumed like stubble fully dried. From you came one who plotted evil against the Lord, a worthless counselor. Thus says the Lord, "Though they are at full strength and many, they will be cut down and pass away. Though I have afflicted you, I will afflict you no more. And now I will break his yoke from off you and will burst your bonds apart." The Lord has given commandment about you: "No more shall your name be perpetuated; from the house of your gods I will cut off the carved image and the metal image. I will make your grave, for you are vile." Nahum 7:7-14

The ones who will be most blessed in the Kingdom of Heaven, which is the destination of all of us, are the ones who go through this Calvary of the twentieth century, shedding tears for mankind, sweat for the earth, and blood for heaven. Those who have tasted the heart of the Father here on earth are the ones who will preside as the princes and princesses in heaven. SMM, Leader's Address 4/21/65

Hello,

Hyung Jin Nim started his Sunday sermon by discussing how, in the late 1940s and 1950s Alfred Kinsey falsified data in order to "prove" children were sexual from birth. His agenda-driven research, which included the sexual abuse of infants and toddlers, was used to normalize premarital sex, homosexuality and pedophilia.

It was also used to change laws all across the U.S., reducing penalties for rape and lowering the age of consent as well as for promoting sexual rights education which lacks substantial discussion of marriage, fidelity or abstinence. Claims of the Kinseyan cult to be "scientific" are bogus. For instance, research shows premarital sex with even one partner other than your spouse increases chance of divorce by 3 times! Teachman, J., (2003), "Premarital sex, premarital cohabitation, and the risk of subsequent marital dissolution among women," Journal of Marriage and the Family 65, 2, 444-455.

Craig Sawyer, the founder of Vets for Child Rescue, who has been interviewed several times on the King's Report, has said that the trafficking of children for sex slavery is a $34 billion industry.

Modern sexualization education is really just replicating ancient cultures, which had widespread slavery and sexual exploitation including temple prostitution.

To God it was ridiculous that the Assyrians were worshipping fallen angels. The people of God also should have great power and authority, but also exercise self-restraint.

The Constitution of Cheon Il Guk protects rights to due process, self-defense, speech, assembly and religion. In it, a federal Department of Education is banned to avoid state indoctrination with political or anti-Biblical messages. Public schools may teach youth to deny reality, but doing challenging things like martial arts teaches respect for reality.

Unification Sanctuary Service 8/21/2022

Relativism says "don't judge." But God, as a Being of justice, judges righteously. That is our model. We should never use power to abuse others or force them to do our will.

A judge will often face pressure to bend to what is popular. Pray for God's Kingdom and Will to come through whistleblowers and judges who follow their conscience.

A terrible drought came last week to China. This will lead to floods, pestilence, poverty, starvation, and the possibility of people rising up or becoming slaves.

Elites don't want the world to enjoy the freedoms we in the USA have had. That is why they are targeting patriots, gun-owners and Christians who believe in the Word of God.

The people will determine the fate of the nations. We must rise up. We must hold public servants accountable with Christ as our guide and protector.

The Foundation for True Father's Victory

by Joe Gaval

If Adam and Eve hadn't fallen, two types of children would have been born without original sin -- a firstborn and then subsequent non-firstborns. Since Adam and Eve did fall, a number of providential victories in the course of restoration had to be accomplished in order for Jesus (a firstborn) to be born without original sin, some of which were:

- Heavenly Father's steadfastness
- Abel's offering in the restorational foundation of faith
- Noah's FF
- the joint FF laid by Abraham and Isaac
- Rebecca's critical support of Jacob
- Jacob's FF
- the restorational foundation of substance by Jacob and Esau
- Tamar
- Moses, Joshua, and Caleb
- Rahab
- Ruth
- Samuel
- Saul (for a time)
- David
- Bathsheba
- Solomon (for a time)
- the prophets
- the bloodshed and deaths of hundreds of thousands of people
- Zechariah the father of Jesus and Mary the mother of Jesus (for a time)

For True Father, a non-firstborn, to be born without original sin, a far greater price had to be paid throughout the almost nineteen hundred years after Jesus' death, the final piece of which was the incredible suffering incurred during World War One. Divine Principle states:

"With the fall of the Satanic world and of the Kaiser who reigned over that world, the foundation of victory in the formation stage in the world on the Heavenly side was established; the foundation was established on which the Lord of the Second Advent could be born as the King of the World on the Heavenly side." [DP, 1973, page 482]

That price was finally paid.

One of Hak Ja Han's lies is that True Father was born with original sin. Throughout our church life, it has always been stated explicitly that True Father was born without original sin.

May God bless you and your families!

BLESSED BE THE AR-15

Inside the Bizarre and Dangerous Rod of Iron Ministries

The AR-15 is a divine instrument for enforcing God's will — and that will, says Rod of Iron Ministries' leader, favors Trump

BY TIM DICKINSON

DAYS AFTER THE insurrection at the Capitol — where he'd been close enough to the rioting to get tear-gassed — Pastor Sean Moon posted an incendiary rant to Instagram. Wearing his trademark crown of bullets and speaking to the camera from behind a golden AR-15 assault rifle, Moon declared Jan. 6 had been the “Boston Tea Party of the Second American Revolution.”

Far from condemning the day's violence, Moon praised the insurrectionists who “took dominion of the Satanic Temple” — that is to say, the U.S. Capitol building — and sent “the most powerful people on the planet scurrying away, like rats, in total fear, total panic, in tunnels.”

“God was victorious that day,” Moon insisted. “The criminals,” the pastor added — referring to America's elected representatives who refused to back Donald Trump's coup attempt — “can never take that image out of their mind. Now they realize, ‘Oh crap, if that happens again, the cops may stand down.’”

Moon is the leader of Rod of Iron Ministries, a breakaway militant sect of the Unification Church. The pastor, 42, is the son of the late global religious leader Sun Myung Moon, revered as the second coming of Christ by his followers, known colloquially as the “Moonies.” The younger Moon's church has gained infamy by glorifying the AR-15 assault rifle as the biblical “rod of iron,” an instrument of God's justice.

Headquartered outside of Scranton, Pennsylvania, Rod of Iron Ministries has stirred alarm with ceremonies in which its faithful bring their weapons to church. Moon preaches an end-times theology that's intertwined with earthly politics. And along with his brother Justin — who, in a nifty twist, owns a gun company that sells assault weapons — Sean Moon has sought to build political power in MAGA world, by cultivating connections to the Trump sons, hosting an annual Freedom Festival that has attracted Steve Bannon to speak, and even forging ties to the NRA board member who put his name at the top of the list of the fake slate of 2020 Electoral College voters from Pennsylvania. Moon calls Teddy Daniels, a Jan. 6 participant who ran as Doug Mastriano’s preferred candidate for Pennsylvania lieutenant governor, “our great friend and brother in Christ.”

Moon has often been portrayed as a zany zealot rather than a threatening revolutionary, but the days when a preacher in a bullet crown could be laughed off as an oddity are over. At a time when GOP leaders are increasingly embracing violence as an acceptable — or even necessary — response to losing an election, Moon’s teachings offer another layer of cover, painting the overthrow of government as ordained by God.

The fervor for regime change that Moon uncorked after the assault on the Capitol has not abated. When the FBI raided Mar-a-Lago last week, Moon turned again to Instagram to blast the attorney general and top Justice Department officials as “abominable, deceit-spewing sociopaths,” imploring “Resist these devils, America. God is with us.”

Hyung Jin “Sean” Moon’s childhood was, to put it mildly, far from typical.

He grew up cloistered in his family’s 19-acre church compound in Westchester County, outside of New York City. Because of security threats his family faced, Moon recalls in a 2018 book, he was “not permitted to wander the neighborhoods, hang out with friends, or ride our bikes outside.” His outlet from bitter isolation — home, he writes, “seemed like a prison” — was self-defense training, including Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu, of which he’s now a blackbelt, and, eventually, firearms.

ADVERTISEMENT

Sean’s father, the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, was the founder and leader of the Unification Church, the conservative global religious movement founded in South Korea. The elder Moon presented himself as a biblical messiah, and famously presided over mass “wedding” events in which believers were purportedly absolved of sin. For the elder Moon, homosexuality was a grave trespass against God, and he compared gay men to “dirty dung-eating dogs.”

In the United States, the elder Moon overcame legal troubles — he was once sentenced to 18 months in prison for filing false tax returns — and founded the conservative Washington Times, which he used to cultivate political power inside the Beltway, including forging close ties to the Bush family. In a bizarre 2004 ceremony, Moon was coronated inside the Dirksen Senate building, declaring himself God incarnate in front of more than a dozen members of Congress.

When the patriarch died in 2012, it sparked a bitter succession battle for control of the Unification Church and its vast business enterprises. Moon’s wife, Hak Ja Han, known to followers as the “True Mother,” consolidated control. She boxed out her son Sean, who’d trained at Harvard Divinity school and insists he was his father’s handpicked successor.

Feeling betrayed by his mother, whom he now likens to the “Harlot of Babylon,” Sean launched his own sect in 2013. The younger Moon’s church has evolved to fetishize AR-15s, rebranding in 2017 as “Rod of Iron Ministries.” The church burst onto the national consciousness with a 2018 ceremony in which members were invited to bring their assault weapons to church, held just days after the school massacre in Parkland, Florida.

Moon, who wears a crown of polished bullets made for him by a religious follower, preaches that the AR-15 is the biblical “rod of iron” — an instrument of divine power. This bizarre reading of the bible springs from passages like Psalms (“You will break them with a rod of iron; you will dash them to pieces like pottery”) and Revelations (“And He shall rule them with a rod of iron.”)

Preaching a last-days theology, Moon prophesies that a heavenly kingdom will soon be established on Earth — and that his heavily armed followers will help rule this land. “The citizens of the Kingdom of God, who will share in Christ’s sovereignty, bear the responsibility to defend their family, neighbors, and nation with their own rod of iron,” Moon writes in his book, Rod of Iron Kingdom.

ADVERTISEMENT

Moon casts himself (and his progeny) as the monarchs of this future divine realm, which he calls the United States of Cheon Il Guk, shorthanded as CIG. He has even written its constitution, describing CIG as “a sovereign and actual nation [that] does not yet exist in this world, but is the long awaited culmination of the End of Time.” The CIG constitution vaguely resembles the American one, but prominently bans abortion and gay marriage, and installs Moon as king.

When he preaches, Moon is rapid-fire and abrasive — a match for a church that treats assault rifles as instruments of the Lord.

But in conversation he comes across as more tempered. Speaking to Rolling Stone on a Zoom call from his ministry’s new retreat center, bought in 2021, in rural Tennessee, Moon clarified that, while his father was the second coming of Christ, he does not deem himself as God, rather “akin to what normal people would see as the Pope — sort of the representative of Christ.” He says his following is approximately 15,000 families worldwide.

Moon says he’s unconcerned by those who refer to Rod of Iron Ministries as a cult. “It doesn’t bother us. It doesn’t paralyze us,” he says, adding that the Moonies have been decried as a cult for decades. “We’ve been hearing that labelling for the last 50 years,” Moon says. “We’re used to that type of persecution.”

Moon insists CIG will be “a kingdom not of tyranny, but a kingdom of freedom and responsibility.” As he spoke, Moon expounded on some of his church’s beliefs. “We see homosexuality just like bestiality,” he said, describing a strict moral code that also sees “dating and having sex before marriage as a critical sin.”

By definition, establishing the United States of Cheon Il Guk will require an overthrow of the current United States of America. Moon denies that force will be required, rather that “people through self-determination and being led by the Spirit of God will organically institute that in their countries.”

ADVERTISEMENT

But behind this softer framing lies the same dark message. Pressed, Moon also insists that the “rod of iron” — or the AR-15 — will be the “accoutrement which allows people to always keep their political servants in check.”

Put more plainly, Sean Moon is leader of an apocalyptic, revolutionary, heavily armed, assault-weapon-fetishising religious order that the Southern Poverty Law Center has described as an “anti-LGBTQ cult.”

Political extremism is a profitable endeavor, and the greater Moon family is no exception. In Sean Moon’s church, guns are holy. But for his brother Justin, they’re also business.

By crossing the streams of end-times Christianity and Second Amendment fundamentalism, in the swing state of Pennsylvania, Rod Iron Ministries is making itself a powerful draw for MAGA politicians eager to communicate with the most based of the GOP base.

Sean Moon’s gun-promoting church, in Newfoundland, Pennsylvania, is closely tied to his brother’s gun business, the Kahr Firearms Group, headquartered in nearby Greeley. (Both towns are exurban to Scranton.)

Kahr Arms Groups owns several gun brands including Thompson, and the company makes street-legal Tommy Guns as well as AR-15s. While the NRA touts Kahr as “a Premier NRA Industry Ally,” the company actively partners with the even-more-hardcore Gun Owners of America, and fights gun-control legislation in Congress as part of GOA’s “No Compromise Alliance.”

Sean Moon describes his brother as “a member of our church,” adding that “like any other member, he contributes what he feels in his heart ... to the organization.” I asked Moon whether adopting the Rod of Iron branding for his church had anything to do with boosting his brother’s business. “No,” the pastor retorted. “Of course not.”

To honor the leader of the MAGA movement, Justin Moon’s firearms company has launched several lines of weapons emblazoned with Trump’s likeness and slogans.

Like their father, the Moon brothers have sought to cultivate ties with powerful figures of the American right, and the modern GOP is proving a fertile ground.

ADVERTISEMENT

When Justin Moon’s company opened a firearms emporium called the Tommy Gun Warehouse in 2016, Sean gave the blessing, and Eric Trump gave the keynote speech. The brothers have also both sought photo ops with Don Trump Jr., who features prominently on Sean Moon’s Instagram account, as well as Justin’s.

To honor the dear leader of the MAGA movement, Justin Moon’s firearms company has launched several lines of weapons emblazoned with Trump’s likeness and slogans, including the POTUS 1911 pistol, the Commander in Chief AR-15, and the Trump Thompson Tommy Gun, chambered in .45 for the 45th president.

In 2019, the Moon brothers together launched the Rod of Iron Freedom Festival, “a non-denominational event to celebrate our Second Amendment.” Its 2021 lineup included former Trump adviser Steve Bannon; Richard Mack, originator of a bogus theory that sheriffs can decide what’s constitutional; former NRATV star Dana Loesh; and John Lott, author of the book More Guns, Less Crime.

And then came the 2020 election, where Pastor Moon saw it as God’s will that Trump would win.

In the run-up to the election, Moon was an unabashed Trump supporter. He filmed himself on Instagram at a Nov. 2 campaign rally near Scranton wearing a MAGA hat and chanting “God Bless Trump!”

Moon was initially crushed by Trump’s loss. On the day after the election, as the “red mirage” was receding, Moon posted: “It is now out of the hands of men! Only by the gift of God can Trump win Wisconsin, Michigan, or Nevada. It is now up to our True Father completely one with Jesus!!! Keep praying Kingdom!”

But by the following day, following the defeated president’s lead, Moon was eagerly promoting the Big Lie to his flock, writing in a new post: “TRUMP VICTORY!!! AMERICA WILL NOT GO ALONG WITH THE ILLEGAL STEAL!!! TRUMP IS OUR PRESIDENT!!!”

Soon, Moon was putting himself at the center of the political movement that, against law and tradition, sought to block the peaceful transfer of power to Joe Biden. He participated in the Million MAGA March in D.C., the “Stop the Steal” rally at the Pennsylvania state capital, Harrisburg. Moon later gave the invocation at the Jericho March rally in front of the U.S. Supreme Court on Dec. 12, which sought divine intervention to overturn the 2020 election results.

ADVERTISEMENT

Moon even inserted himself in efforts to get Pennsylvania to recall its electors to the Electoral College. On Jan 3, he helped organized a protest in front of Pennsylvania Speaker of the House Brian Cutler's home to demand the recall of the state's electors.

As the nation hurtled toward Jan. 6, Moon began associating himself with the "Black Robed Regiment" — a loose association of right-wing religious leaders who've appropriated a name the British once used to mock radical preachers who helped foment the American Revolution.

Moon was soon touting Jan. 6, in explicitly militaristic terms. In a video posted on Dec. 30, Moon prayed in front of a wall of Tommy guns at his brother's gun warehouse. Invoking the American Revolution, he asked for God to give Trump "the spirit that was in our founding fathers; the spirit that stood up against evil." Moon then asked God to guide his backers "as we mobilize for Jan. 6, as the commander-in-chief has called."

On Jan 5, Moon — who is obsessed with motorcycles as well as guns — rallied a pack of "Rod of Iron Riders," resembling a motorcycle gang, to Washington D.C. Moon wrote that their purpose was to "scout D.C." and posted a short film of their reconnaissance ride. He wore a skull face mask, painted in camouflage.

On the day of Jan 6 itself, Moon showed up on the Mall in the predawn darkness. As the mob rushed forward to the Capitol, Moon got close enough to the action to get hit with tear gas. While Moon's exact role in the day's events is murky, one of his church faithful, a man named David Kanagy, who was also in attendance, wrote about the experience on the Rod of Iron Ministries website — describing ministry members attempting to overrun police positions.

Kanagy's writing — and particularly a passage on a second failed push to get into the Capitol — offers a preview into the devotion Moon has from his followers. "I saw others climbing the stairs of the bleachers on the left side, so I followed them up the stairs," he wrote. Kanagy added that he was warned the scaffolding was unsteady. "I thought I shouldn't worry, but be there to support the King," he wrote, apparently referring to Moon. "If the scaffolding collapsed from so many people, it would be tragic, but that would be a good way to die as an offering."

ADVERTISEMENT

Today, Moon takes pains to separate himself from the "crazies" of Jan. 6. He insisted to Rolling Stone that he and his followers were just "peacefully singing" — including praise songs and "God Bless America" — when he was tear-gassed. "For us, it was just exercising our First Amendment right to peaceably assemble," he says.

But in the immediate aftermath of the event, Moon had insisted that history would vindicate Jan. 6 as the day "Goliath's air of invulnerability" was "shattered," adding that the original Tea Party of 1773 was "also condemned at the time."

Moon says he's not been contacted by law enforcement or the January 6 Committee.

Sean Moon did not take Joe Biden's inauguration well. In a video from Jan. 21, 2021, Moon cast the Biden presidency in calamitous terms, as a victory for Chinese communists. "The Chi-Com puppet agent," he said, referring to Biden, "has usurped the once-Judeo Christian republic of America."

Moon preached armed resistance, invoking the founder of the Oath Keepers militia. “God is telling us to become his hands and feet,” Moon said. “Just like Stewart Rhodes of Oath Keepers said, all the Trump people now must be activated to become part of civil defense forces, neighborhood defense forces — whatever you wanna call it.”

Moon insisted it was not time to be “cowering in fear of being called a cultist, or extremist, or a domestic terrorist.” Pointing to his family’s long history of being called a cult, he added, “Join the club. Get over it.”

ADVERTISEMENT

The gun-loving pastor has long lionized the Bundy family — whose serial armed standoffs with the government, Moon has written, epitomize “the character and courage” necessary to stand up to “abuses of federal power.” Warning that the “Stalinistic curse machine is coming,” Moon continued his video, insisting that the only defense was mass resistance. “There should be 100 Buddy ranches,” Moon said, adding of that armed standoff: “It should be like that everywhere. So if they try to come for one they come for all.”

Despite such unhinged rhetoric, Moon and his church continue to make inroads with MAGA politicians. In May 2021, Doug Mastriano — now the GOP gubernatorial candidate in Pennsylvania — was scheduled to speak at Rod of Iron Ministries. The appearance fell through; Mastriano appeared instead at a fundraiser with Rudy Giuliani. Moon says the two have yet to meet personally, but insists of Mastriano, “We support him and his policies.”

At the 2021 Rod of Iron Freedom Festival in October, former Trump adviser Steve Bannon was a special guest speaker, as was Joey Gibson, a far-right former Senate candidate who is closely associated with the Proud Boys. Teddy Daniels palled around with Moon, taking a selfie holding the pastor’s golden AR-15. (Made by his brother’s company, the rifle gets its distinctive color from a coating of titanium nitride.) The 2022 lineup is still fluid, but already touts former Trump White House adviser Sebastian Gorka and former U.N. ambassador Alan Keyes.

Pastor Moon sees himself and his church in a battle with “political Satanism.” He has thrown his lot in with the MAGA movement because, he insists, it reflects “the human desire to pursue freedom and not let a small cabal of people rule over them with impunity.”

When I asked Moon if he sees the MAGA crowd as helpful in advancing the events necessary for establishing his divine kingdom, he deflected: “We don’t know how God will use all these relationships.” But he says that his motivation is “standing together with people who are like-minded, like-hearted — and want to pursue God’s will in His kingdom.”

The Foundation for True Father's Victory

By Joe Gaval

August 23, 2022

If Adam and Eve hadn't fallen, two types of children would have been born without original sin -- a firstborn and then subsequent non-firstborns. Since Adam and Eve did fall, a number of providential victories in the course of restoration had to be accomplished in order for Jesus (a firstborn) to be born without original sin, some of which were:

- Heavenly Father's steadfastness
- Abel's offering in the restorational foundation of faith
- Noah's FF
- the joint FF laid by Abraham and Isaac
- Rebecca's critical support of Jacob
- Jacob's FF
- the restorational foundation of substance by Jacob and Esau
- Tamar
- Moses, Joshua, and Caleb
- Rahab
- Ruth
- Samuel
- Saul (for a time)
- David
- Bathsheba
- Solomon (for a time)
- the prophets
- the bloodshed and deaths of hundreds of thousands of people
- Zechariah the father of Jesus and Mary the mother of Jesus (for a time)

For True Father, a non-firstborn, to be born without original sin, a far greater price had to be paid throughout the almost nineteen hundred years after Jesus' death, the final piece of which was the incredible suffering incurred during World War One. Divine Principle states:

"With the fall of the Satanic world and of the Kaiser who reigned over that world, the foundation of victory in the formation stage in the world on the Heavenly side was established; the foundation was established on which the Lord of the Second Advent could be born as the King of the World on the Heavenly side." [DP, 1973, page 482]

That price was finally paid.

One of Hak Ja Han's lies is that True Father was born with original sin. Throughout our church life, it has always been stated explicitly that True Father was born without original sin. Consider the great philosophers, theologians, religious figures, scientists, mathematicians, and thinkers of the past. While there has been tremendous bloodshed throughout human history, the reason why none of the great minds could do what Father did (and what Jesus did) in unlocking the secrets of God's Ideal, the fall of man, and the history and pattern of restoration is because when they got close to the answer, Satan always had the hook of original sin to draw them and those whom they would influence back into a less enlightened state.

With True Father, Satan had no such hook. It was True Father who wept rivers of tears through floorboards in order to comfort God's Heart of grief caused by the fall of man, not Hak Ja Han. It was True Father and not Hak Ja Han who was tortured into shedding pints of blood in standing up for God, his most precious, loving Heavenly Father, and then thrown into the gutter and left for dead, restored to life in part by loving brothers and sisters who implored God to please take their lives instead of his. It was True Father who maintained heavenly dignity as he shed gallons of sweat in the Hungnam death camp, not Hak Ja Han. It was our True Father who unlocked the secrets that Satan had kept hidden for millennia and whom Satan had no power to stop, not Hak Ja Han. Hak Ja Han and her mother joined True Father's movement, not vice versa.

True Father, a man without original sin who grew to perfection and whose love for God (and God's love for him) increased through such ordeals:

(a) knew God's Heart of hope and innocent expectation that His ideal would be substantiated, i.e. His Heart from before and during the Creation;

(b) knew God's Heart of grief that was caused by the fall and further saddened by the crucifixion of His Son Jesus; and

(c) knew and embodied God's resolute Heart to restore each of His lost sons and daughters.

Satan had no power and no condition by which he could stop Father directly. His strategy has always been to target individuals who never felt close to Father and who therefore did not know the depth of True Father's absolutely obedient, absolutely faithful, and absolutely loving relationship with God. Using whatever hook that was available to him, Satan would influence those individuals to demean True Father, try to destroy his standing in the hearts and minds of others with similar weaknesses, or otherwise block the implementation of Heavenly Father's providential directives. That is precisely what Hak Ja Han has been doing since before True Father ascended.
