First of all, thank you for holding a contest for our community. I really think this is a good way to stimulate people to contribute with their talents and share their creativity. I'm very grateful to receive the first place, and I just want to express that the fact that I did this video was a deep experience itself for me. For a long time I've been recording my nephew's life, moments that I thought were visually beautiful. Knowing Jaime's story, I decided that hopefully one day I could make a video about the "pain of loving". Thanks to the chance of being in the contest, I decided to try. The idea developed into something more unique through the lens of my brother. I think it was a project of discovery for myself too, into the depth of parenthood and love. I want to clarify that none of the footage of the video is staged (except the interview). All the moments included in the video were as close to "reality", without asking the people to act in a certain way. I was capturing what was happening. So, the important moment of Jaime playing with bubbles, was the exact moment that Carlos was asking himself the question "who is my son beyond the pain". I had no idea I was recording that. All I know is that when I checked the footage I had, I just thought it was meant to be. Thank you again, and I hope all these videos can be an inspiration for others. God bless, Javier Badosa

Second place winner receiving a total of 61 points: Gabor Vasmatics with his clip "Nature".

Some points of a letter from Gabor sharing his experience in the competition.

Thank you very much. Actually it was a very inspiring competition for all of us and knowing that every participant would receive 50 Euros (not only the winner like in usual competitions) was an even greater inspiration for many, as not everyone had previous experience in making videos and for sure they would be discouraged to compete without having any hope to win. But a competition where everyone wins is very encouraging even for the beginners. I was very happy when I met our 2nd Gen and young members in several communities and they expressed their excitement, and I was encouraging them to really do it. It is unfortunate to have this pandemic situation, but after that I am planning to do some "personal trainings" to help our youngsters improve their skills, as this can be a very effective way to witness a wide audience online. And once more, thank you so much for this opportunity. Best regards, Gabor Vasmatics
