(First part)

Rev. Tibor's lectures helped me understand the desperate situation that the spiritual world is in and how much the resentful spirits stuck on us want to be liberated. I understood better the layers of evil spirits that are stuck on us. One very important realization I had after asking God so many times- why is my twin sister sooo different from me and why she is so negative all the time...and why it's so difficult to witness her? I realized during lectures that God wanted to work with our lineage and he had to separate good from evil symbolically and that is why it's so easy for me to follow True Parents, and for her is more difficult...for many years after I joined she accused me of being with our movement and leaving her alone...after realizing this I felt even more responsibility to love her on behalf of True Parents. I am happy she joined the CheonBo event in the last day, and she was very inspired by President Moon's heartistic lecture, life advice, and really sincere sharing. She even asked if anyone has the event recorded because she wanted to listen to the speech again.

Another realization I had was in the Chanyang session when Rev. Tibor and President Moon offered Ansu for members, and they also came to me. When they touched my head, the first impulse was to start sobbing and crying. This made me realize how deprived of true parental love we all are, and in such a pitiful situation to live our early life with false parents that cannot offer even one pat on the head. This really stuck with me, and when President Moon shared in his speech about our responsibility to share this true love environment and True Parents' existence with everyone, I felt a lot of responsibility.

One more point that remains with me is that God chose each of us to follow True Parents for our good points. God looks at the potential and goodness in each of us. I many times consider myself insufficient and an imposter in following God, but what President In Pyo Moon shared really touched my heard. I determined as my internal goal this year to find the good points in the people I meet.

I am deeply grateful for the opportunity to know more about the spiritual world and to receive education and love from the people so close to our True Parents!

The CheonBo workshop was really great for me personally. I normally don't connect so much to long Vigal prayers, or Chanyang. But something that I was feeling towards the end was more of a sense of peace within myself and confidence in who I am in God's eyes. I didn't see spirits or any of that kind of stuff, but I invested my most into the activities that we were doing, and the more I was doing them the more at ease and peaceful I found within myself. Peace is something that I value a lot, especially since it's been hard to find peace most of my life, so the workshop was really good for me as I'm starting this mission here in Romania, so I think the experiences I had were made just for me and will help me in my mission. Thank you Cheon Bo team!

I never could grasp the true meaning and understanding of ancestor liberation and Cheonbo. This past week completely changed my view and I have a new found gratitude to True Parents for what they brought to us. Feeling the grace of God through the gift True Parents gave us. After the cheonbo workshop I feel so much lighter. The spirit of our mission team has brighten. I also realized the importance of dealing with these evil spirits and being aware of how much it impacts my daily life. The last thing I want to say is that I realized I am not alone. True Father in spirit world is with me to guide and support me. I realized I need to be desperate in longing to be with True Father. Be desperate in my mission. Be desperate to help True Mother. I am determined to use the power of the CSW to connect to spirit world. With my own hands I can't accomplish anything but with our Heavenly Parent and True Parents I can accomplish everything.

In the past, I never really connected to chanyang or the resonance prayer. I knew the purpose but I just couldn't understand it fully heartisitically so in the beginning, it was a little challenging to connect. However, during the vigil prayer, when I saw people crying and praying desperately during resonance prayer, I got curious and thought, "would I be able to pray like that? I wonder how it'd be like?" Therefore, as the days went by, i started to be more intentional during the things we did; Chanyang, Vigil prayer, and the Resonance prayer. Then, in the end during the resonance prayer, I began to open up to God a little more and through that, I felt a lot of God's love through that prayer. during the last portion of the evening on the last day, my heart was aching really bad and at the moment, I really wanted to cry but I just didn't understand why it was that way. then, I began to have so many realizations about how God's love were given to me throughout my life and in that moment, I began to feel so much of gods love.

The CheonBo workshop was perfect timing for my team and I. Both on personal levels and on a witnessing team level, I truly feel like it was exactly what we needed. I was so grateful to the entire CheonBo team for their loving spirit and clear explanation of each program we did. By the end of the 3 day workshop, I felt a lot more clarity both intellectually and spiritually. I felt so much hope and support from the spirit world and from my own ancestors. I know this workshop will be a strong foundation for our future witnessing efforts here in Romania.

Overall, I felt less heavy from the event. Usually, I have negative thoughts that cause me to feel tension in my neck and shoulders. Some of the thoughts are there but the pain isn't. It was kind of strange without it, though. I almost didn't know how to feel in the peace. It was nice overall, it made think of moms relationship with her father. She a had dad who had PTSD from war 2 back when they didn't have a word for it. She was spoiled by her father but had to witness her brothers be severely beat by him. My mother is a grown woman now and shes wonderful in so many ways but she said, "Arabel, I'm still locked in my body and in my emotions. I'm probably still traumatized" I was shocked because what she was describing was exactly how I felt. Anyway, she also loved her dad and would always say "he was a scholar, government worker, brilliant," etc. Maybe I'll have that mentality later on.

First of all, I would like to express my deep heart of gratitude for Heavenly Parent and True Parents that gave us, Romania to have amazing CheonBo workshop. And of cause I'm deeply grateful for CheonBo Team who traveled until Romania to organize this workshop. Romania needed this time, Romania needed to revive, Romania needed to re-start our life of faith again. And I truly felt through Chanyang session and CheonShimWon prayer was the time of resurrection, time of revival of our spirit.

Especially, this time during the CheonShimWon Prayer I strongly felt the tides between me and True Mother. Unite with True Mother is not the concept anymore it's in my heart. What I feel, Mother feels.. And how about me? Do I feel always what Mother feels like her daughter? This was confronting question I had during the prayer. And I really felt in the prayer that even Mother knows my situation and limitations, She embraced me, never give up on me and need me with Her. And just I was grateful for this Mother's love and I strongly felt that I need to invest for CheonShimWon Prayer more than before in order to have the state that my thought is Mother's thought. CheonShimWon prayer is the way to connect directly to True Parent's Heart and I'm truly grateful for this experience.

Also in 2nd day of Chanyang Session, I could feel support from my grandmother from other side on my right arm and my grandfather from father side on the left arm. Even I felt so heavy before starting the Chanyang session, because of my ancestor's help, I could overcome. And I truly felt, "I'm not alone. I'm going this path of life together with all my ancestors to truly meet Heavenly Parent and True Parents, and one day we all cry for joy and happiness, and victory!" In the end I want to express special thanks for Prs.Moon for consultation. I could arrange my heart my thought centered on Heavenly Parent and True Parents. Thank you so much!

Thank you beloved True Parents!
