Gapyeong County signed a business agreement with Cheongshim International Medical Center to support health checkups for village leaders

Gyeonggi Province, Gapyeong County announced on the 28th that it would support the health checkup expenses, in order to prevent illnesses of village heads, who play a bridge role between the local residents and administrative organizations.

The County has recently revised a supporting plan on the health and activity expense for the heads-of-villagers "Gapyeong-gun Liban Installation and Operation Ordinance," which includes a plan to provide regular health checkups every two years starting from May.

The County will provide 250,000 won for health checkup fees, so that 126 village heads can also conduct a health checkup. Support for health checkup expenses will be allocated depending on whether they were born in the even or odd-number year, and will be provided to 53 heads this year and 73 heads in 2018.

In addition, the County, the Head-of-village Association and the Cheongshim International Medical Center Hospital have concluded a business agreement for the health checkup for the heads-of-villagers, and decided to cooperate with each other to ensure a smooth comprehensive checkup program.

With the signing of the agreement, Cheongshim International Medical Center, equipped with excellent facilities and medical staff, will continue to manage the health of these customers, and will be able to increase effectiveness by cooperating with associated hospitals when diseases are found after examination.

"As a volunteer to lead the unity and solidarity among the residents, and to promote the benefits of the local residents, I have decided to support the health checkup expenses in order to protect the health of the leaders who are doing their best in their respective positions. We are also pleased to work with the Cheongshim International Medical Center, the only general hospital in Korea with an excellent, world-class medical infrastructure, to enhance the effectiveness of the hospital."....
