Throughout his visit, Rev. Doo engaged with families, youth, and clergy, emphasizing that Blessed Families are called to be models of holiness and joy. He urged the community to become exemplary families that inspire society and embody the ideals of Cheon Il Guk. Rev. Doo offered words of comfort, reminding the members that True Mother is always with them in spirit, encouraging them to remain proactive and faithful even in challenging times.

Empowering the Youth

Meeting with the 65 HTG Africa Missionaries currently enrolled in the one-year missionary program, Rev. Doo highlighted the importance of community life and talent development. He challenged young leaders to:

Refine their unique abilities to achieve professional excellence.

Become outstanding figures in their respective fields.

Actively contribute their skills to the building of Cheon Il Guk.

Leadership and Stewardship

In a series of roundtable meetings, Rev. Doo addressed leaders at all levels, stressing the need for clear organizational structure and proactive problem-solving. He encouraged leaders to take full ownership of their mission areas and resolve challenges locally through strengthened communication.

Furthermore, he underscored the importance of stewardship, noting that church assets and facilities must be meticulously maintained and actively used to ensure their long-term effectiveness in supporting the mission.
