April 5, 2026

The second Blessed Couple Workshop was successfully held on April 4 - 5, 2026, at the HJ CheonBo Training Center, bringing together 20 couples for a meaningful time of reflection, renewal, and growth in their marital relationships.

Purpose and Vision

The workshop aimed not only to strengthen the bond between husband and wife but also to deepen the understanding of the eternal nature of marriage through the Blessing. It taught that the marital relationship is not limited to life on earth but continues into the eternal spiritual world. Through this perspective, couples were guided to see their marriage as a sacred and everlasting bond, centered on God and True Parents.

Program Highlights

Throughout the two-day program, participants experienced a sincere and uplifting atmosphere that encouraged open communication, self-reflection, and reconnection.

Localization: This workshop marked a continuation from the first session, which was led by a Japanese lecturer. In this second installment, four Thai lecturers - who previously attended the first program - prepared and delivered the sessions, ensuring the content connected deeply with Thai couples.

Atmosphere: The environment was described as heartfelt, sincere, and transformative, fostering a space for genuine spiritual growth.

Participant Reflections

Participants shared that the experience helped them grow closer to their spouses and better understand each other's hearts. One participant shared a deeply moving reflection:

He expressed that the workshop helped realign his life around the heart of God and True Parents. The seminar clarified the importance of prioritizing faith within family life and reminded him to place God at the center of his relationship with his spouse and children. He expressed heartfelt gratitude toward his wife, noting that his appreciation for her had deepened, giving him renewed determination to build a harmonious family.

An Eternal Perspective

More importantly, the workshop helped participants rediscover that true love is meant to be eternal. This understanding inspired couples to take greater responsibility in nurturing their relationships - not only for present happiness but as preparation for their life together in the spiritual world. Daily expressions of love, forgiveness, and gratitude were viewed as meaningful investments into an everlasting relationship.

Conclusion

The second Blessed Couple Workshop continues to play an important role in supporting families and strengthening marriages. By helping couples return to their original heart, the program builds a lasting foundation of true love that extends beyond this life into eternity.
