Hi,

We are looking for 5 to 10 outstanding young leaders who are passionate about global environmental efforts and demonstrate strong leadership qualities. We invite you to join us as an official international delegate at the Mongolia Forum 2026 from June 19-24th in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia.

This is a unique opportunity to engage with global experts, expand your leadership abilities, and contribute your voice to important conversations on the environment.

You will gain valuable experience, build connections with likeminded peers, and develop practical skills for future impact. Please note that participation fees are not covered by GPF; we recommend seeking support from family, school, or church communities to help with costs.

Here is what you can expect:

Engage on the main stage: Share your ideas and insights on environmental issues as part of dynamic sessions in Ulaanbaatar and expert-led retreat discussions.

Shape global policy: Collaborate with peers to help draft and present a "Youth Declaration on Environment & Peace" that will directly contribute to the COP17 agenda.

Lead and inspire: Take part in peer training activities, helping local Mongolian youth gain new skills and perspectives for social impact.

Build connections and experience: Join a strategy session with fellow youth, organize a campfire evening, and enjoy a unique horseback riding cultural exchange.

Next step:

If you are eager to take part in global environmental conversations and have what it takes to inspire others, we encourage you to apply.

Express your interest: Contact mfarr@globalpeace.org to apply.

Please note, participation is not sponsored by GPF and all fees will need to be covered by the individual—we encourage you to explore support from family, school, or faith communities to help with costs.

Reach out today to secure your spot and receive full application details.

We look forward to seeing your leadership in action.

Sincerely,
Mark Farr
Program Manager
