

How God Becomes Perfect

True Father explained the dance of God, Adam, Eve and the archangel in Eden.

"The ultimate goal of God is to find one perfected Adam, but that Adam cannot come into being unless an Eve is found through whom he can be perfected." Reciprocally, "Eve also had no way to reach perfection without Adam.

To build their relationship, Adam and Eve both had to sacrifice. Adam had to sacrifice his adventures. Eve had to sacrifice her enchantment over being escorted by her heavenly hosts.

The brother and sister had to put each other first.

Adam had to provide Eve a masculine love stronger than that of the archangel. "From Adam's point of view, Eve and the three archangels were to have followed him." Eve, whose beauty naturally attracted Adam, had to have the heart of his mother until he won her heart as his wife.

And together, representing God, Adam and Eve had to care for the archangels. "God and His sons and daughters enter heaven only after they are able to love the archangel."

As God's Son, Adam had to inherit what the archangels could teach and surpass them. With Heavenly Mother's heart, Eve had to honor the archangels' eons of service to Heavenly Father.

Thereby, Adam and Eve were to dominate the creation with love. Eve would have blossomed, for "Eve ... was supposed to become God's queen and His external incarnation ... the wife of God."

As servants of the true Lord and Lady, the archangels, centering on Lucifer, would have naturally fulfilled their portion of responsibility. To their noble wards, who were still in the indirect dominion, these servants would have conveyed more and more words from God.

Service to these pure and focused humans would have protected the archangels from entertaining selfish desires. Adam and Eve's intense commitment to each other within the Commandment would have brought the archangels to worship them.

Eve would have realized her destiny with Adam, that he was the substance of Heavenly Father, to whom she was to be wife. She would have guided Adam to comprehend the apotheosis he would find in her. True Father said, "in order to reach her perfection, Eve must either create Adam, meet Adam, or give birth to Adam."

With God's Blessing, "Eve and the three archangels, centering on Adam, were to unite with God and enter the Heavenly Kingdom."
