How the Russian Invasion of Ukraine is Reshaping the World Order

TUESDAY, APRIL 5TH AT 2 PM EDT

UPDATED PANEL BELOW

Amb. Joseph DeTrani

Board of Managers, Sandia National Laboratories; Former U.S. Envoy to the Six-Party Talks

Amb. Robert G. Joseph

Senior Scholar, National Institute for Public Policy; former Under Secretary of State for Arms Control and International Security; founder, Center for the Study of Weapons of Mass Destruction, National Defense University

GUEST PANELIST
Lt. Gen. (ret.) Joseph "Kelth" Kellogg Jr.

(U.S. Army ret.); former Executive Director, National Security Council

Mr. Guy Taylor

National Security Team Leader, The Washington Times

Dr. Michael Jenkins

President, The Washington Times Foundation

Our guest panelist, Lt. Gen. (ret.) Keith Kellogg is an experienced warfighter, national security advisor and strategic thinker. He will be joined by Amb. Robert G. Joseph, Senior Scholar, National Institute for Public Policy; former Under Secretary of State for Arms Control and International Security; founder, Center for the Study of Weapons of Mass Destruction, National Defense University, and Mr. Guy Taylor, National Security Team Leader of The Washington Times.

Join him and our expert panel in a discussion of the evolving world order, even as it unfolds before us.

If you missed it, here's what our upcoming Washington Brief is about:

In a world of interlocking economies, alliances and unintended consequences, nothing is isolated and unaffected by the catastrophic events happening in Ukraine. As Russia grows desperate for a victory, there is talk of Moscow's use of chemical weapons, even tactical nukes. China, despite abstaining in the UN vote, is seen to support the Russian invasion, while also contemplating Taiwan. Economic sanctions by the democratic world and the global social media put Russia into pariah status. Meanwhile, basic energy and food security for many countries is in danger.
