

Donald Trump, Hillary Clinton and Kook Jin's huge bomb shelter in the woods

Trump's build a wall thing is not racism. He's thinking of economics and how to deal with the flood of Central American refugees coming across the southern border. My conclusion about Trump is that he is neither a racist nor a sexist. At least not appreciably more than many others. But "racist" fits well on a bumper sticker, so people go with that. However, he's clumsy, boorish, ignorant and speaks in haste, to his own detriment -- and if he's elected -- to the detriment of America and our allies.

Hillary is all about... Hillary. She doesn't worship Lucifer; she worships Hillary. True Father said of Bill Clinton once, "He is very far away from God." Hillary may be far more distant from God than Bill ever was. Under the 3-5 Supreme Court justices she will appoint, the legacy of suffering from her administration will last 20-30 years.

It's lose-lose. We are a people overloaded with information and distractions, and this has eroded our ability to discuss complex, nuanced issues in depth. The mind of modern man has been dry-rotted from the inside out by the internet. We conduct government by bumper sticker. We turn on ALL CAPS and shout at people we know nothing about.

As bad as things are now, I'm afraid they will get much worse for a while. America is about to hit a very rough patch that Hillary or Trump will be ineffective in stopping. I fear many may die. Whoever is elected president will receive an F-minus on history's report card. And much of it will not be their direct fault. They are simply unprepared for what's coming.

Kook Jin's huge bomb shelter in the woods, and storing dried food and ammo will help on one level. A little bit. I think those things will end up creating more problems for you than they solve. However, I do applaud and respect the effort. It's good to have contingency plans. Sanctuary's worst enemy by far is a Constitution that appoints successors by name and that can never be amended by anything other than revolution.
