President's Corner: I Couldn't Walk for 4 Weeks... Here's What I Learned

A few weeks ago, I went through something that turned my life upside down: the worst ankle sprain I've ever had. The pain was intense, and my ankle looked so swollen and bruised that I was convinced it was broken. Luckily, it wasn't—but it was still a bad sprain that left me unable to walk for four weeks (and counting!)

Surpassing Our Goal: How Your Support is Transforming Schools Across Africa

We are thrilled to announce that we have not only met but exceeded our goal for the Schools of Africa campaign! Our initial goal was $12,000, and thanks to your incredible generosity, we have raised an outstanding $14,118. Your support has been instrumental in financially supporting nine schools across eight African countries.

Korea as a Pioneer: How a Peaceful Korean Peninsula Would Change the Global Landscape

On August 15 each year, South Korea celebrates "Gwangbokjeol," or National Liberation Day, commemorating the country's liberation from 35 years of Japanese colonial rule on August 15, 1945. Despite significant efforts over the past seven decades, the Korean Peninsula remains divided. To explore the potential of a reunified Korea and its global impact, the Women's Federation for World Peace USA hosted the GWPN Forum: "Korea as a Pioneer: How a Peaceful Korean Peninsula Would Change the Global Landscape."

WFWP Arizona Honors Women Behind Project J.O.Y. at HerStory Award Program

On August 25, the Arizona chapter of the Women's Federation for World Peace (WFWP) hosted a special HerStory Award ceremony during the dinner reception of singer Marcelito Pomoy. The event was dedicated to recognizing the remarkable contributions of two women who have played pivotal roles in the success of Project J.O.Y., an organization dedicated to transforming healthcare and providing shelter for homeless families in the Philippines.
