LETTER FROM THE PUBLISHER

Dr. Katsumi Otsuka, Chairman, UPF Europe & Middle East

Dear Readers,

The 2019 World Summit, held in February in Seoul, South Korea, has been the foundation for a flurry of UPF events around the world.

In Albania, former heads of state and government from the Balkan nations gathered to launch preparations for the Southeast Europe Peace Summit to be held in Tirana in October. The ongoing challenge of peace on the Korean Peninsula has stimulated a series of supporting events in Europe, notably in Moscow.

But the central feature of the spring season has been the celebration of the family. Our cover story is the event jointly organized by UPF and the World Council of Churches at WCC Headquarters in Geneva. Other events have been held and co-sponsored by UPF around the world: From mega-church gatherings in Los Angeles and Johannesburg, to city-level seminars in Europe and the Middle East, the family as the school of love and peace needs to be protected and strengthened in our world of conflict.

I wish to thank our UPF Ambassadors for Peace and UPF volunteers for their contributions to these remarkable accomplishments.

a banker representing Hinduism, Ms. Jamie Morgan, a Methodist serving as an assistant to the Interfaith executive office of the WCC, representing the protestant faith, and Ms. Kamaljit Kaur, representing Sikhism.

The first speaker in the session on “War and Crisis Zones: Maintaining Familial Resilience” was Professor Dr. Isabel Apawo Phiri, the deputy general secretary of the World Council of Churches, who laid out briefly what the WCC stands for, which is unity among all churches. People want to celebrate families today, but one also must meet the wounds, she said, which are in quite a few trouble spots all over the world.

Fr. Pavel Samotovka, Priest, Orthodox community of Prague, Czech Republic, spoke on the Christian concept of the family and the destructive effect of war. Ms. Heather Komenda of the International Organization for Migration (IOM) mentioned that her organization’s approach, to work with families rather than individuals, is quite new. IOM most recently has become very aware that working with families is crucial in dealing with vulnerable individuals, she said, especially victims of human trafficking.

The final session on Thriving Families and Social Wellbeing included Mr. Hafid Ouairi, President, Fondation de l’Entreconnaissance, Geneva; Deepa Grover, Senior Adviser, Early Childhood Development, UNICEF EU/Central Asia; Rev. Dr. Peniel Rajkumar, Programme director of the WCC on Interreligious activities; Ms. Giovanna Campello, Officer-in-charge, UNODC, Prevention, Treatment, Rehabilitation; and Dr. Michael Balcomb, President of Family Federation for World Peace and Unification Europe & Middle East.

In recent years, the family has also been subjected to numerous forces that seek in some way to deform it, following a secular view of reality which entails a faulty notion of freedom, considered as an autonomous power of self-affirmation for or against others for one's own selfish well-being. In light of these challenges, as you probably all know, the Synod of the Family, which is a meeting in the Catholic Church on singular topics from time to time, that was convened in 2014 and 2015, sent a clear message on the centrality of the institution of the family.

The family, in fact, is truly the school of humanity which is much needed today. In the family, a person learns endurance, the joy of work, fraternal love, generosity and forgiving others, and above all the offering of one's life in the service of others. In spite of the various signs of the crisis of the family in the global village, the working document of the Synod states that the desire to marry and form a family still remains vibrant and serves as the basis of the church's need to proclaim untiringly and with profound conviction the gospel of the family.

Professor Dr. Isabel Apawo Phiri

Deputy General Secretary of the World Council of Churches

Unity between churches is what the World Council of Churches stands for, and the fellowship of all 350 churches representing over 500 million Christians in 120 countries. The churches call each other to visible unity in witness and service to the world for a just and peaceful world. The WCC brings together the Orthodox, Lutheran, Anglican, Methodist, Reformed, Peace, African indigenous and many other churches. It has a working relationship with the Roman Catholic Church and the Pentecostal and Evangelical world bodies, and such cooperation focuses on issues in which we can agree to work together.

The WCC member churches have different definitions of the family in general; there are some among the members of the WCC that hold to Christian traditional values of family, and then we have others that hold what is called progressive family values. However, what gives us hope in the WCC is that we hold onto prophetic theology and the WCC creates a platform for the members to discuss controversial moral issues. This is possible when working within the framework of the pilgrimage of justice and peace, which the WCC fellowship has embarked on together with its ecumenical partners and people of goodwill.

FOUNDER'S MESSAGE

THE FAMILY IS THE TEXTBOOK OF LOVE

The following is an excerpt from "True Families: Gateway to Heaven" by Reverend Sun Myung Moon (2009).

The family is the smallest unit in the kingdom of heaven. It serves as a training center and a study guide. It has all levels of people: grandparents, parents, husband and wife, and siblings. Each of these levels can be expanded to include people in the world at large who are of similar age. This expansion encompasses all humanity. Only a family that loves all humanity as much as it does its own members, in whom the parents live for the sake of the world as much as they do for their own sons and daughters, can inherit the kingdom of heaven. This is an amazing fact. The special right to inherit all the power and authority of heaven and earth created by God is derived from this.

The family is the textbook of love that lets us obtain the right to be registered in the palace of peace in the kingdom of heaven after we die. So, the family is a training ground of love. The extension of this family is the world. This is a world that resembles the grandfather of the family, a world that resembles the grandmother, a world that resembles the father and mother, and a world that resembles the son and daughter. Expand the family, and you have the world.

So, if you can love the people of the whole world as much as you love your family, as much as you love God with your family at the center, then this will become a straight road leading to the kingdom of heaven. This is why the first commandment is, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind."

The second is, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." If you love God and love humanity, everything will be realized. If you cannot do this, any spiritual training you may have will be of no use. No matter how great a religious person's spiritual discipline may be, that person will be unsuccessful if he or she does not know how to love God, humankind and the universe.

The family is meant to provide the formula course that trains us to experience love that encapsulates the whole universe, so we can go out and express that love to the whole world. The training ground you were meant to inherit, where you experience this kind of love, is the family where your mother and father raised you.
