Dear Logic of Love Newsletter readers,

I have some exciting news to share. In just three weeks I am expecting my first child! With this transition to motherhood, I have decided to step down as the WFWP USA newsletter editor. I am deeply humbled and grateful for your readership and support during my tenure for the past 26 months.

Through my work with WFWP USA, I have gotten to know an incredible family of women leaders with warm and embracing motherly hearts that inspire me every day with their faith and tenacity to keep spreading the vision and culture of our WFWP Founder Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon. A lot of effort and heart is behind all the reports and articles that come to your inbox twice a month, and I appreciate all the chairwomen, representatives and contributors who continue to send in inspiring and uplifting content.

I hope this newsletter has been able to brighten your days and also kept you abreast of all the latest happenings and activities within WFWP. Thank you to all those who ever sent me some constructive feedback or words of appreciation. If I have been able to touch even one person through this newsletter, I feel that all the work has been worth it.

Special thanks goes to the wonderful national team that is the backbone of our organization, including our President Angelika Selle, Vice President Katarina Connery, Outreach Director Kiyomi Schmidt, Administrative Assistant Johanna Rothstein (who is also going on maternity leave) and Treasurer and HR Coordinator Irmgard Baynes.

While I am taking a break from work for the next few months, I plan to continue supporting WFWP, and will be exploring new ways to do so in the future. I pray that my daughter can grow up in a world that is shining with empowering female role models such as the members of WFWP.

I leave you now in the capable hands of my successor, Yoshi Mori, and wish her great success with the continued development of this newsletter.

Sincerely,

Natascha Phillips
