Meet the Membership Coordinator, Hana Deshotel

Hana Deshotel is excited to see women leading the way to lasting peace in their communities. She is pleased to take part in an organization that empowers women and girls to use their voices and talents. As membership coordinator for WFP USA, Hana communicates with WFP chapters across the nation and works toward their growth. She holds degrees in Education and International Affairs and has been a teacher and peace activist. She lives in Connecticut and likes to read biographies of famous women and picture the future when all human beings realize their true value.

Meet the Administrative Assistant, Johanna Rothstein

Hi everyone! My name is Johanna Rothstein, and I am the new administrative assistant for WFP USA. I graduated from Mount Holyoke College in 2016 where I majored in Biology. Shortly after I graduated, I enrolled in a teacher training program to become a transpersonal healer. I am currently working towards becoming a certified healer in energy work and counseling. My interest also includes music, and you can often find me playing the cello at my church during service on Sundays.

I am inspired by the vision of WFP and their efforts on empowerment and focusing on bringing out the divine feminine into this world. I look forward to working with each and every one of you and getting to know all the amazing work that you all are doing.
