

The heart of a widow - A blessed widow

Anne-Marie Mylar
February 27, 2023

I am a widow, I am alone, I have no one to talk with, I have no one to share my joy, my sorrows, my hopes, my work, my food, my - everything.

I have no one to kiss good morning or kiss good night. So, I kiss my cat instead!

My husband and I, years prior to his ascension had told me, he did not want me to be alone if I was going to be the one left behind. He even suggested a few names of friends of ours who were singles.

When we found out that he was very sick - he reminded me of that. He was so concerned about me. He loved me, beyond himself. He loves me today, still.

A year after his departure - I considered the possibility of welcoming someone in my life, but the idea did not last more than just a few days. In the past 10 years I have grown a lot, spiritually, Why? Because I am alone. I would not be able to share my life today, intimately with another husband.

I am alone, therefore, I have more time for myself. I found myself, in the prayer room much longer - reading, thinking, singing, praying. I have time. I have no one else to care for or to worry about. I am alone.

As a mother and a wife, I was the last one to go to bed, I could not fall asleep until I knew that "my brood" was safely tucked in bed, and that included my husband.

Today, I am the first, and the last to go to bed. I am alone.

Blessed widows and widowers need give and take, need companionship, need a kiss on the head once in a while. Some of us may be able to function, alone, but many may not. For the sake of spiritual and physical lives blessed widows and widowers need to be allowed to find each other. So, that, together, they can keep growing and become the Godly individuals that Heavenly Parent wants us to become.

PS: 6 months after the departure of my husband, I invited a couple to move in with me, they were there for almost 9 years. We live together as true friends and helped and served each other. I am so grateful for them being with me. Soon, I will be moving with my daughter and son in law. I am soon to be 72 years old.

Marriage for Widowed Blessed Unificationists

Please click HERE to read the document - It will comfort your heart.

Special note: Though, there is no legal relationship between the BFM and OMS, there is a relationship of trust and heart as we work together towards the fulfilment of God's will.

The nature of the Marriage Blessing is that it is an "eternal marriage" between one man and one woman. The couple will ultimately dwell in the spirit world together. As such, the issue of Blessed widows and widowers remarrying after their spouse ascends is complicated. In light of this, and due to many complications in the spiritual world, the guidelines of receiving a Comfort Blessing has gone through several changes throughout the history of our Movement.

For questions and concerns regarding the Comfort Blessing, please contact the BFM directly via their website.

A personal message from Anne-Marie

As the originator of the Online Matching System, it is my responsibility to think through all things Matching and Blessing. I do not want to hurt anyone or lead anyone down a wrong path, even inadvertently. Cheon Il Guk Incorporated and the Online Matching System are here to serve an ever-growing group of individuals who seek the Marriage-Blessing of our True Parents.

The group of Blessed widows and widowers is also a growing segment of our Movement; I do not want to forget them or just let them be. Some of our Blessed Children have become orphans. We also have children with only one parent, as well as older ladies and gentlemen who could benefit from companionship.

The Comfort Blessing difficulties come from the fact that the spiritual world is involved, and talking, and making a lot of noise. And, we, on earth, need to sort it all out. Let us bear in mind, that the spiritual world is made up of people just like us—imperfect beings growing towards their perfection. So, our spouses are talking and we are listening. However, blessed widows and blessed widowers have the duty to also speak their mind and argue in their defense for the sake of their sanity, their children, and their spiritual growth. Just like when our spouses were on this earth, we did not always agree on everything and we had to make our points and explain our own views. It is still the same except that one is in the spiritual world and the other is on earth.

Given the history of the Comfort Blessing being open at times in the past, and the possibility that it may become available in the future, OMS has chosen to continue providing a platform available for blessed widows and blessed widowers to connect with and support one another. OMS will not encourage what steps an individual should take. OMS is simply there to provide a venue centered on God and the True Parents.

You are not alone

The BFA has a group for families and friends of the ascended. We encourage you to visit it.

Dear Anne-Marie,

Hello, I am sorry my response took time. I wanted to make sure I had time to sit in front of my computer and type this but seems life is not giving me this time. I write to you as I am in bed with the lights off so I can get few hours of sleep before I go to work after I send this to you.

I wanted to tell you I really really appreciated your phone call. I felt like I tried to reach out, do my 5% (as the church would say), hoping something would change and I felt like I was shut down a lot of times In the past. You making that phone call twice and the email you sent was the most anyone in the church has ever done for me in such a long time. And It really touched me.

I just wanted to let you know, I wanted to try using OMS once, seriously commit to it, and see what happens from it. I hope I can try to find time to do sometime soon... within the month.

I just wanted to let you know.

Good night & Thank you.

Received September 2017

Hi Anne- Marie,

I would like to let you know that I got blessed during the recent Blessing. It was done by means of parents' matching. My spouse is from ----. I participate in the ceremony in September.

I would like to thank you for the love and support you have given me on this long and tough journey. Thank you so much for encouraging me to fearlessly pursue True Parents' vision. Your support came at a time when I was being ridiculed and belittled by elders and those in leadership. There were even threats after you wrote a letter to International HQ.

During the difficult times it meant a lot to me that a person that I had never met was urging me on and giving me love. It is because of that support that I am where I am today. I hope God gives you the strength to carry on as well as to bless you in your personal life and whatever you do.

Kind Regards
