Living for the Sake of Others

Live for the Sake of Others! This past month, all chapters received a box of t-shirts with this slogan (see pictures above). It's the essence of CARP's culture and root of our education - that we are meant to live for more than just ourselves and our comfort. We could make a difference when we love others.

So, it's no surprise that the focus this month has been on relationships.

Some Highlights:

- Staff Members, Jinil Fleischman and Jennifer Pierce, took a tour of the Midwest and visited local chapters and student leaders! They got a tour of the campuses and joined local club meetings to support local CARP activity in the future. (Grand Rapids, MI visit pictured above. More pictures below.)
- NCARP and CARP Las Vegas participated in the Sexuality, Integrity, and the University conference at Princeton University, learning new insights and making new connections. (full report below)
- CARP Las Vegas held their first Campus Talk of the semester on College of Southern Nevada (CSN) campus on November 1st with the theme "Sexual Integrity and the Breakdown of the Family." (Picture below.)

Living for the sake of others is not just another phrase on a bright red t-shirt, but a lifestyle CARP students are dedicated to, even after they graduate. In this way, we carry this empowering culture with us into work and society.

On Thursday, November 1st, CARP at the College of Southern Nevada held their 3rd Campus Talk on the topic, "Sexual Morality & the Breakdown of the Family." More will be shared after a similar event on Nov. 7th!

Student Spotlight: Marcus Fuller, CARP Las Vegas

Over the last two years, I have had countless other experiences with the CARP members, each one showing me time and time again that the culture we have in CARP is one of family and love. Even though I have an older sister and three younger brothers, I believe that once I met CARP, I finally understood what it meant to have a family.

CARP Alumni Teaches the Unification Principle

For CARP Las Vegas's monthly two-day retreat, Staff Member, Jinil Fleischman, had an opportunity to teach the Unification Principle.

"Having experienced giving Unification Principle lectures to new guests and CARP members myself, I really believe that other CARP members can benefit from this kind of experience. I'm excited to see how we as young people can change the world by living Principled lives!"
