

CARP USA Newsletter: Seasons of Life

Teresa Rischl
October 9, 2019

Watching the Leaves Change Color

If you have seasons where you live (sorry most of California), you may be watching the trees put on new shades. The Autumn season brings beautiful views, especially on college campuses. Right as the school load is picking up during the semester, the leaves are beginning to change color. Are you missing the beauty because you're so busy?

Seasons teach us something beautiful about change and growth. Life won't always look like it does now. Mid-term/test season doesn't last forever. It's a great chance to recognize where you are now (perhaps college), and think about where you're going.

So what can you do NOW to cultivate growth for the future?

See what these CARP chapters have done...

On September 19th, CARP at University of Bridgeport kick-started their semester by co-hosting Sing for Peace with Youth and Students for Peace to bring together different clubs and religious groups. Read more about their event here.

Seventeen chapters hosted a table for Club Fairs that spanned 31 days! Tabling is a great way to share about CARP and make new friends at the start of the semester.

Check out the full list of campuses and photos here.

Special shout out: Dr. Frank Kaufmann, a supporter and educator of CARP, was used as a source in a journalism class at University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV), further proving that CARP, its Principles, its educators, and its vision are important to academics.

Thanks to every student on campus who continues to champion and share about CARP wherever they go.

As you can see, CARP is a place for students to cultivate the things that matter most. CARP encourages students to be intentional and think about, "what kind of life do I want to live?" CARP members are constantly reaching out to stimulate others on their campuses to think about these important topics. By doing so, they plant goodness.

You can plant goodness, too, by supporting CARP's programs during our End-of-Year Giving Season. Support principled student leadership training with a tax-exempt donation. Stay tuned for details.

Donations help students promote principles on campus, like these Live for the Sake of Others t-shirts!

Announcements

Did you know CARP Bay Area and CARP Las Vegas have their own newsletters? You can check out the Bay Area Newsletter and the Las Vegas Newsletter on our website.

CARP Las Vegas' 5th Campus Talk is happening on November 2nd! Stay up to date and find out more on their newsletter. Student travel scholarships are available. Contact jini@carplife.org.

Sexuality, Integrity, and the University

The Love and Fidelity Network's annual conference is taking place on November 8-9. Student travel sponsorships are available until October 25th or until they run out for students who are interested in attending.

Network with other students who stand for marriage, family, and sexual integrity. Sign up ASAP!

Click here for more information.

Whether or not you're in school, you can stand for a principled culture. Thank you for being part of the CARP movement.

With gratitude,

Teresa Rischl

CARP USA President

