True Mother Sentenced to Two Years in Prison- But When Will It End?

Dr. Hak Ja Han’s two-year prison term is already turning into a cycle that may never finish as two years. Arrest. Cell. Collapse. Hospital with a fence of conditions. Return date on the order. Cell again. Another petition. Another month. She was arrested in September 2025 and held more than six months at Seoul Detention Center. She arrived at sentencing in a wheelchair, hospital clothes, and a mask.

Dr. Hak Ja Han's two-year prison term is already turning into a cycle that may never finish as two years.

Arrest. Cell. Collapse. Hospital with a fence of conditions. Return date on the order. Cell again. Another petition. Another month.

She was arrested in September 2025 and held more than six months at Seoul Detention Center. She arrived at sentencing in a wheelchair, hospital clothes, and a mask.

The court did not send her from the bench to a cell. It extended the suspension of her detention on medical grounds — falls inside the jail, heart risk, glaucoma surgery, later shoulder treatment. The latest order keeps her in a hospital through 6 p.m. on September 30, 2026.

Days she actually spent in the detention center can count against the two-year term. Days on hospital "suspension of detention" generally do not. And none of it is being subtracted from the two years yet, because the sentence is not final.

Korean Criminal Act Article 57 requires all pretrial detention days (미결구금) to be credited against a prison term, one day for one day.

The first hospital order came in early November 2025. Counsel told the court she had late-stage glaucoma and was at risk of going blind. The bench granted a short suspension of detention: hospital grounds only, medical staff and identified lawyers only, no contact with case witnesses. She had eye surgery, including at Hallym University hospital. Counsel asked to stay longer for recovery. The court said no. Special prosecutors argued the surgery was done and aftercare had not been proven.

On November 7 she was back in the cell.

The second order came in February 2026. Lawyers said she had fallen three times inside the detention center, that pain had spread through her body, and that painkillers were no longer enough. They cited a risk of cardiogenic shock. The court gave her ten days, February 12 to 21, again confined to the treating hospital. An extension was denied. She went back.

The third break followed a fall the defense dated to January 23. Counsel later said the fall tore the rotator cuff — a supraspinatus tear — and fractured the shoulder. The injury was confirmed only after a full hospital exam, not inside the jail.

In late March lawyers told the court she had chest tightness, trouble breathing, and "does not even have the strength to chew rice." The court sent her out again.

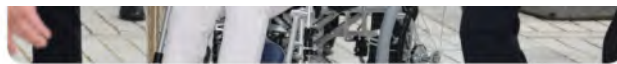

On April 14 she had shoulder surgery under general anesthesia. Counsel asked for about two months of rehabilitation. The court often gave a month at a time. The stays were extended through the spring and summer.

After the August 31 sentence, the same tool was used again. The current window runs to 6 p.m. on September 30, 2026.

Is this how a two-year sentence is supposed to work?

Or is the system built so the custody never has to end?

Their desire may well be to just continue this cycle. Also, keeping her in hospital will present the system as being sufficiently 'humanitarian' and so, behind the very real health-needs, there may well be a strategy.

This account tells facts about Dr. Hak Ja Han's injuries and that very serious injuries happened while she was in prison! Her health is not good. The health of this worldwide peacemaker and leader is of paramount importance! Stop persecuting The Mother of Peace.

While the treatment of #TheMotherOfPeace is unjust and inhumane Korea is experiencing a political and economic crisis. Wake up Korea!

Dr. Hak Ja Han can receive a fair trial in South Korea only if, during the appeal process, a real crisis takes the presidential administration's attention away from persecuting minority religions and the current witch-hunt frenzy dies down. #ReleaseTheMotherOfPeace

How sad! This is not justice. A 83 year old woman is being pushed to the brink of her life. The world needs to know what is happening to her. It is beginning to resemble North Korea.

何よりも命と人権を優先し、一日も早く自由な身で適切な治療を受けられることを願います。
