BREAKING: True Mother Granted (Highly) Restricted Bail in South Korea

We have received confirmation through internal sources, along with reports from multiple Korean news outlets, that the Seoul High Court has granted conditional bail to Dr. Hak Ja Han, the Mother of Peace.

The court reportedly considered her health condition, the progress of her trial, and the evidence already gathered.

Under the ruling, she will remain at the hospital where she is receiving medical treatment rather than returning to detention. The conditions include restrictions on leaving the hospital and strict limitations on contact with others.

This decision comes just before her temporary medical suspension of detention was due to expire on October 20.

Basically, instead of sending her back to detention, they're letting her stay in hospital. However, apparently she will have no access to anyone outside the circle of medical or legal personnel.

The Mother of Peace should be allowed to return home, but we are at least deeply relieved that she will not be returned to detention for the remainder of the appeal.

We continue to pray for her health, complete freedom, and justice.

For those praying that she didn't have to go back to a cell tomorrow, this will feel like good news. For those who are praying for her to be able to go home, this will feel like bad news.

Justice isn't true justice unless it's mitigated by mercy. Mother Moon doesn't deserve to be confined in a prison hospital. Let the Mother of Peace go home to her own doctors, her own family, and her own home. Let Her Go!

As usual, any good news has been very mixed...the courts should do the right thing and release her—she is no threat to the trial or the public!!

Can you imagine the heartbreak of Mother being told she will be "released", but cannot leave the hospital or speak to family members and loved ones? Today, a legal messenger delivered that message to Mother, because nobody else would, and is truly ashamed of the courts he serves.

Though we are grateful our Holy Mother Han will not have to return to a tiny detention cell, we pray for the day of her complete and utter exoneration.

Greetings. Does anyone know how long her appeal will last for? It's worth noting that bail does not mean she's free from accusation.

So she's paying for the privilege of staying in the hospital. Way to siphon more money from her.
