Masako Feddema

Spouse: Petrus Feddema

Children: Jasun

Birthdate: January 5, 1951

Blessing: July 1, 1982

Ascension: July 22, 2021

Masako was born January 5, 1951 in Naha City, Okinawa, Japan. She is the middle child of Shitaro Yamashiro and Kiku Oshiro; her older sister is Miyoko; her younger brother, Masaaki. She is survived by her husband Petrus, her son Jasun, and her two grandchildren: Koriya and Felix.

Under her sweet demeanor and joyous laugh was a fierce and loyal friend; one that would help and encourage others to be their best self. One that would show up and be her best self for them.

After graduating from the University of the Ryukyus with Bachelors's in English and Psychology, she joined the Unification Church and dedicated her life to God and True Parents, a decision that would shape the rest of her life. Masako quickly found herself appointed to leadership positions. She would spend the next decade traveling the world, counseling church members, and translating for spiritual leaders. This natural, counseling leadership would express itself in whatever she endeavored.

As a wife, mother, sister, aunt, grandmother, friend, coworker, she would bring a deep love that would not shy away from challenges. While her mind was always on the big picture, she always made sure to enjoy the simple, everyday moments of life. She spent her remaining days spending time with her grandchildren, building a business for their prosperity, and having brunch with the whole family every Sunday. Her presence will be missed, but her essence will be in our hearts forever.

Masako passed away on July 22, 2021, three days after suffering a brain hemorrhage.
