

FFWPU Europe and the Middle East: Hiroshi Ogasawara Vows to Keep Fighting Despite Election Loss

Knut Holdhus
July 21, 2025

Hiroshi Ogasawara reporting the election results to his supporters late at night on 20th July in Chiba City. Japan

Sekai Nippo

Unyielding in spite of loss in Upper House election, party founder wants to keep standing for faith and family and push vision for Japan's future

Tokyo, 21st July 2025 - Published as an article in the Japanese newspaper Sekai Nippo. Republished with permission. Translated from Japanese. Original article.

"I Did Everything I Could"

Family Federation Believer Hiroshi Ogasawara Ran in Chiba Constituency for Upper House Election

by the editorial department of Sekai Nippo

See also In Election Bid Citing Faith, Family, and Freedom

See also Large Daily on Family Federation and Politics

Hiroshi and Kaoru Ogasawara on the campaign trail July 10, 2025

Hiroshi Ogasawara (小笠原裕 - 62), a certified small and medium enterprise management consultant and an active member of the Family Federation for World Peace and Unification (formerly the Unification Church), ran in the Chiba constituency for the House of Councillors election under the political group "Association to Protect Japanese Families". In the late evening of 20th July, he announced via internet broadcast that he had no chance of winning. However, he expressed his commitment, saying,

"As an organization, we will continue political activities and work to change Japan."

During the campaign period, Ogasawara gave more than 80 street speeches. Reflecting on the effort, he said,

"I did everything I could."

In his speeches, he openly disclosed his affiliation with the Family Federation and criticized both the Ministry of Education's request for the religious organization's dissolution and the practice of coercive faith-breaking [See editor's note below] through abduction and confinement.

Hiroshi Ogasawara and supporter Kunihiko Shibamura on the campaign trail July 14, 2025

Together with his wife, Kaoru (薫 - 61), he traveled around the prefecture emphasizing the importance of protecting religious freedom and the family. On 8th July, the anniversary of the assassination of former Prime Minister Shinzo Abe (安倍晋三), he held a memorial speech and moment of silence in public.

His campaign posters were sometimes defaced with slurs such as "Korean" and "idiot," but he also recalled being approached by non-believing young people who expressed interest in his message. Ogasawara noted,

"What young people expect is not short-term policies, but a vision of what Japan should be 20 or 30 years from now. Japan must move forward with policies that consider future generations."

He added, "Our religious organization's unique values and principles have the potential to improve Japan, but we need to find better ways to communicate them clearly to voters. I want to think about what we can do for Japan and its people and strive toward the 'beautiful Japan' that Abe envisioned."

See also In Election Bid Citing Faith, Family, and Freedom

See also Large Daily on Family Federation and Politics

Editor's note: Coercive faith-breaking ("deprogramming", forced renunciation of faith) in Japan refers to the practice of coercively attempting to separate individuals from their religious affiliations or beliefs, typically through intervention by family members, professional faith-breakers (deprogrammers) or organizations hostile to new religious movements (NRMs). This phenomenon often targets members of such movements, e.g. relatively large faiths like the [Family Federation or Jehovah's Witnesses, but also smaller groups like Happy Science (Kōfuku no Kagaku) and other newer religious movements.

However, also Soka Gakkai, a Buddhist-based lay organization with more than 8 million Japanese members, and affiliated with Nichiren Buddhism, has occasionally been subject to faith-breaking attempts.

Also subject to faith-breaking attempts: Members of Soka Gakkai. Here, students belonging to the faith in 2001

The practice gained attention in the latter half of the 20th century, particularly in the 1980s and 1990s. Parents or concerned family members often hired faith-breakers who taught them how to abduct and forcibly detain believers. Almost all such cases involved confining the individual believer and cutting him or her off from the religious community. During the confinement, the believer was subjected to intense questioning or indoctrination designed to break his or her faith. The aim was to "rescue" the person from what the family often had been tricked by faith-breakers or lawyers to regard as harmful influence from the religious organization.

Critics of forced de-conversion argue that it violates fundamental human rights, including freedom of thought, religion, and association. Reports of psychological trauma and accusations of unlawful detention have sparked debates over its ethical and legal implications. In response, some religious groups, particularly NRMs, have lobbied for greater protections against such practices.

Japanese courts have been inconsistent in addressing cases of coercive faith-breaking. While some verdicts have condemned the practice as illegal detention, others have been more lenient, citing family concerns about "mental health" or alleged "exploitation" as mitigating factors.]

Related to election loss: Japan Following the Way of China

Also related to election loss: Japan's Dissolution Case Echoes China's Playbook

And also related to election loss: "Lawyers Lying and Shaming Japan" for 50 Years

More, related to election loss: Lawfare: State Uses Legal System in War on Faith

Also related to election loss: Media/Legal Expert: Communism Behind Persecution

And more, related to election loss: Militant Lawyers Dictate Government Policy

And more, related to election loss: Media Helping Terrorist Reach His Goal

And more, related to election loss: Japan: Even Dead Souls Face State Persecution

Related to election loss: Kishida Administration Giving in to Terrorism

And more, related to election loss: 12 Religious Freedom NGOs Denouncing Japan

Yet more, related to election loss: Japanese Communists' Final War

Still more, related to election loss: Political and Social Activism behind Oppression

And yet more, related to election loss: Opposition Inciting Regime to Excessive Steps

And still more, related to election loss: Journalist Reveals Ugly Leftwing Conspiracy

And even more, related to election loss: Gingrich: Kishida Joining Communist Campaign

Yet more, related to election loss: The 3 Enemies of Religious Liberty

Still more, related to election loss: Lawyer Exposes Dirty Leftwing Plot

And yet more, related to election loss: Inhuman Government-Supported Mass Deprogramming

And still more, related to election loss: Bias: No Right to Respond for Religious Minority

And even more, related to election loss: Collusion to Rob Minority of Its Rights

Yet more, related to election loss: State and Media Creating "Today's Non-Citizens"

Still more, related to election loss: Japan Criticized for Glaring Rights Violations

And yet more, related to election loss: Two European Scholars Warning Japan

When Society Forces You To Hide Your Faith

• July 20, 2025
• Knut Holdhus

Share:

f

t

g

in

e

Living with one's faith hidden: When society drives believers underground – Japan joining ranks with North Korea, China and the Middle East Tokyo, 20th July 2025 – Published as an article in the Japanese newspaper Sekai Nippo. Republished with permission. Translated from Japanese. Original article.

The Anguish of Believers Forced to Hide Their Faith

by Satoshi Ogawa (小川 敏)

See also China's New Crackdown: War on Foreign Christians

See also State Persecution in Japan, Iran, and

Logo of the Sekai Nippo

More Posts

Large Daily On Family Federation And Politics

July 22, 2025

Despite '25 Election Loss: Vows To Keep Fighting

July 21, 2025

Forced Renunciation Of Faith Condemned By Forum

July 19, 2025

Investigation: Were Gifts To Ex-1st Lady Bribery?

July 18, 2025

UN Report: Japan's Lawfare Against Faith Minority

July 17, 2025

Issue Of Communism Reemerging As US-China Clash

July 16, 2025

Protesting No Transparency In Closed-Door Trial

July 15, 2025

Search...

Q

In Islam, the act of declaring one's faith is known as the Shahada, meaning "evidence" or "testimony". Concretely, this refers to reciting the foundational Islamic creed:

"Ashhadu an la ilaha illallah, wa ashhadu anna Muhammadan rasulullah"
("There is no god but Allah, and Muhammad is the messenger of Allah.")

Muslims are obligated to recite this phrase five times a day. On the other hand, when Muslims hide their faith from others due to security or religious reasons, it is known as taqiyya – literally: "hiding one's faith" or religious dissimulation [See editor's note below].

This practice has sometimes been employed by followers of minority Shia sects, such as the Alawites and Druze. (This section references information from Islamic websites such as "Kaken".)

Alawites celebrating a festival in Banyas, Syria during World War II. Photo: Frank Hurley (1885-1962) / Wikimedia Commons. Public domain image

In Christianity, "confession of faith" refers to the public declaration of belief in Jesus Christ as Savior. It is a pledge of loyalty to God and a way to affirm one's identity as a Christian – for instance, through declaring belief in Christ at baptism.

In contrast, "faith concealment" refers to the act of not disclosing or intentionally hiding one's Christian faith, out of fear of persecution or disadvantage.

A real-life example of faith concealment can be found among Christians in North Korea, where there is no freedom of religion. In September 2015, international missionary organization Open Doors held a 60th anniversary event at Vienna University of Technology. There, a North Korean defector named Ms. Kim Yong-seok gave a striking testimony.

Dangerous to possess in North Korea: A Bible. Here, Revision Korean Commons Translations Bible, Anglican Edition. Photo: Alvis Jean / Wikimedia Commons. Public domain image. Cropped

Simply possessing a Bible could lead to arrest – and in worse cases, detention in a labor camp, where survival is uncertain.

When Ms. Kim was a child, she often saw her father sitting quietly with his head bowed. She thought that was just what older people did. But in reality, he was praying. In North Korea, even prayer is forbidden, and one must do it in a way that others don't notice.

Her family was sent to a camp when it was discovered they were Christians. She saw her father only once while in prison, and never again afterward.

"Confession of faith" and "faith concealment" are polar opposites. In the latter case, believers may find themselves unable to declare their faith due to concerns for their own or their family's safety – leading to inner turmoil. While confession of faith is an active expression of loyalty to God, faith concealment is often a painful, protective response to harsh circumstances.

Although many countries today guarantee freedom of religion, minority denominations can still be oppressed under the influence of dominant religious traditions.

In fact, persecution of Christians from minority denominations continues in some Islamic countries. Many have been killed simply for confessing their faith.

Send us a message

First Name * Last Name

Email *

Email Address

Your Message *

Submit

I chose to write about confession and concealment of faith in this column after hearing that Druze believers in Syria have at times practiced faith concealment to avoid persecution from Sunni Muslims. In southern Syria's As-Suwayda Governorate, since 13th July, clashes have erupted between the minority Druze and Bedouin Sunnis, resulting in over 300 casualties so far.

Religious persecution is not unfamiliar to Japan's own history. The novel Silence by Shūsaku Endō (遠藤周作) portrays the agony of Christians caught between confessing and concealing their faith under intense persecution.

In recent times, we're witnessing something similar: amid the intense scrutiny and so-called "witch hunt" following the government's dissolution order against the Family Federation for World Peace and Unification (formerly the Unification Church), some believers are advocating for freedom of religion, while others may be forced into faith concealment.

In any case, the left-leaning media outlets and certain politicians who have relentlessly pursued the eradication of the former Unification Church will someday have to atone for the anguish they have inflicted on believers forced into hiding their faith. History teaches us that much.

Shusaku Endo.
*photographed on 21st
October 1966 at his home
in Tamagawa Gakuen, Machida City, Japan.
Photo: Wikimedia Commons. Public domain image*

See also: China's New Crackdown: War on Foreign Christians

See also State Persecution in Japan, Iran, and Pakistan

Featured image above: *Druze and Christians in As-Suwayda, Syria.
Photo (2021): Marsharbt / Wikimedia Commons. License: CC BY-SA 4.0
Int. Cropped*

Editor's note: [Taqiyya is an Islamic principle that allows a person to conceal their faith or beliefs when under threat, persecution, or compulsion, particularly when facing danger to life or severe harm. The concept is rooted in the Qur'an (e.g., Qur'an 16:106), which permits believers to protect themselves when forced to deny their faith, as long as their hearts remain firm in belief.

It has been especially emphasized in Shia Islam, where minority Shia communities have historically faced persecution and used taqiyya for self-preservation.

Taqiyya is not a license to lie for personal gain. It is a form of self-protection in extreme circumstances, not a routine practice.

In essence, taqiyya allows for the concealment of faith to avoid harm, while inwardly maintaining one's beliefs.]

Related to society forcing faith underground: Lawfare: State Uses Legal System in War on Faith

Also related to society forcing faith underground: "Lawyers Lying and Shaming Japan" for 50 Years

And also related to society forcing faith underground: Japan Following the Way of China

Also related to society forcing faith underground: Media Stereotypes and Misinformation Challenged

And also related to society forcing faith underground: Media Criticized for Stereotyping Minorities

Also related to society forcing faith underground: After the N-Word: Is "Cult" Next Term to Be Banned?

And also related to society forcing faith underground: Japan's Dissolution Case Echoes China's Playbook

More, related to society forcing faith underground: Media/Legal Expert: Communism Behind Persecution

And more, related to society forcing faith underground: Militant Lawyers Dictate Government Policy

And more, related to society forcing faith underground: Media Helping Terrorist Reach His Goal

Related to society forcing faith underground: Kishida Administration

Giving in to Terrorism

And more, related to society forcing faith underground: 12 Religious Freedom NGOs Denouncing Japan

Yet more, related to society forcing faith underground: Japanese Communists' Final War

Still more, related to society forcing faith underground: Political and Social Activism behind Oppression

And yet more, related to society forcing faith underground: Opposition Inciting Regime to Excessive Steps

And still more, related to society forcing faith underground: Journalist Reveals Ugly Leftwing Conspiracy

And even more, related to society forcing faith underground: Gingrich: Kishida Joining Communist Campaign

Yet more, related to society forcing faith underground: The 3 Enemies of Religious Liberty

Still more, related to society forcing faith underground: Lawyer Exposes Dirty Leftwing Plot

And yet more, related to society forcing faith underground: Inhuman Government-Supported Mass Deprogramming

And still more, related to society forcing faith underground: Bias: No Right to Respond for Religious Minority

And even more, related to society forcing faith underground: Collusion to Rob Minority of Its Rights

Yet more, related to society forcing faith underground: State and Media Creating "Today's Non-Citizens"

Still more, related to society forcing faith underground: Japan Criticized for Glaring Rights Violations

And yet more, related to society forcing faith underground: Two European Scholars Warning Japan

« Previous Next »
Forced Renunciation Of Faith ... Despite '25 Election Loss: Vo...

GET STARTED

Home Privacy Policy

SUBSCRIBE TO OUR NEWSLETTER

☐ I consent to receive the newsletter every 2 weeks and I understand that I can unsubscribe at any time.

