We have now held seven sessions of our painting course, and after the summer break, we look forward to continuing on a monthly basis.

The students greatly enjoy exploring painting, self-expression, and their own personalities. With each session, a strong sense of community is developing. We not only paint together, but also share our thoughts and feelings with one another. The feeling of belonging together like a family is something everyone can relate to.

Sharing the WFWP Peace Curriculum

Although our expected guest was unable to attend, the programme still provided a valuable opportunity for WFWP members, families, and other guests to learn more about WFWP and the teachings presented through the Peace Curriculum.

It was a meaningful occasion to connect through creativity, learning, and shared values of peace and community.
