Rev. Dr. Sharon Styles Anderson is a distinguished business leader with a passion for stopping violence and crime. With three decades of experience in Christian servant leadership and as an Executive Pastor in a global non-denominational ministry, she has a proven track record of driving strong organizational and financial results for churches and non-profits. Dr. Anderson's dedication extends beyond the spiritual realm; she has successfully acquired funding for workforce development programs, developed community programs for the vulnerable, and is currently working on a billion-dollar development to expand affordable housing opportunities and eradicate food deserts.

Dr. Anderson's commitment to stopping violence and fostering civility is also evident in her acclaimed work as a Global Thought Leader on civility. She has authored books and articles on the subject, including "Emotional Civility-The New Standard for Global Success." Through her framework for cultivating a safe and productive culture of civility and respect, she advocates for applying civility as a standard to bring success, peace, and safety to homes, communities, and nations. Dr. Anderson founded "Emotional Civility Day," a National Day recognized by the United States National Archives, dedicated to promoting civility and respect.

While her professional achievements are notable, Dr. Anderson's role as a loving mother and grandmother remains her top priority. Guided by her faith and the belief in her ability to overcome obstacles, she continues to lead the charge in stopping violence and crime, both in her community and globally.
