Why do some parents rear competent children and others fail? What makes an excellent parent?

This was a beautiful program to organize, as the speakers who participated in it belong to organizations which have kept a good relationship with WFPW-Spain over time and we counted on a 2nd gen as well.

The presentations were absolutely valuable not only for young fathers and mothers, but to parents and people in general as the patterns and principles discussed are applicable to human relationships beyond age and circumstances.

The conclusion is that we should organize follow up sessions so as to go deeper into topics related to parents' education of loving and competent children. We felt utterly grateful to every person who helped in one way or another.
