Rosmarie (Rosi) Hack was born on October 23, 1947 in Mulheim, Germany. She lived there with her parents until she was 12 years old. Her father worked for NATO and was stationed in America.

She came to America on a boat in 1960. Her family moved to Maryland, and Rosmarie went to Walt Whitman High school. In 1965, she met the Unification movement in Washington DC, but she left America to pursue her college degree in Germany.

Then in 1969, she met the Unification movement again in Germany and felt compelled to join. Rosi pioneered many cities in Germany and has many spiritual children that joined and remain members today.

In 1973, Rosmarie joined her friends on a mission trip back to America. She worked for many years as a secretary and bookkeeper in New York.

She was matched (engaged) in 1979 to Benjamin Bruce Hack, and in 1982 they were blessed in marriage in Madison Square Garden. When Rosmarie and Benjamin started their family, they moved to Brooklyn to raise their children. They spent 13 wonderful years there and had three children, Chaim, Adalia and Elisa.

After 13 years in Brooklyn, they decided to move to Westchester, New York. After Rosmarie and her family moved to Westchester, she opened her home to host numerous young people and friends. Rosmarie created a tradition of having family dinners every night, and she and Benjamin planned a family trip every year.

When the children were older, Rosi returned to work, serving as activities specialist at a nursing home in their hometown.

At different times in her life, Rosmarie struggled with depression. However, she helped many members with her special strengths, such as her compassion and empathy. She counseled many families and friends. She was always devoted to God, her family and helping others. Rosmarie is survived by husband Benjamin Hack; son Chaim, wife Laura and three children Aaron, William and Eliana; daughter Adalia and husband Reony, with son Ryden; and youngest daughter Elisa. Her legacy will live on through her children, grandchildren and countless people whose hearts she touched.
