

Testimony of Spiritual Works - Intervention of a Holy Spirit - Part 2

Angela Signorelli

January 2001

Rome, Italy

Republished by FFWPU International Headquarters September 30, 2024

(2000) Angela (at right) with her husband with whom she married before they met the church, their daughter and son

We met, only the two of us, in a big hall. His face was very serious and full of concentration. At that moment, I felt his spiritual energy and power, and I understood that his knowledge of the spirit world was really powerful. At the same time, I was worried, because I didn't know what was going to happen.

He told me that he was going to write every single word of what I said. He said that I did not need to be afraid: Very often the saints come and speak to us, but after that, some other spirits may interfere and disturb us. He has the power to understand those things and find out the truth. Then he shut the door and started asking me questions:

"When did the messages start?"

I replied, "June 13, 1998."

"Were they written down?"

I said, "they were."

After the questions ended, he asked to talk with St. Catherine and offered a special prayer. He invoked the Holy Spirit so that it might purify me, and let St. Catherine enter my body. I felt an incredible energy, come from the top of my head, and slowly enter my body. I felt I had to leave my body, and that's what actually happened. (I was aware of what was happening in the room, but I was separate from it.)

St. Catherine spoke about the urgency that Heavenly Father is feeling in our time. She said that all those who have been using God for their own personal purposes could no longer do so. The time has come for us to take responsibility to love our Father with filial love. After that the explanation of the Principle started, focusing on the roles of each central figure in Jesus' time, including the role of Mary, which the Archbishop accepted, because he understood the purpose for which God had sent the Messiah.

At the beginning, their conversation wasn't calm. They were arguing. He was very strong, but she no less so. In the adjacent kitchen, they could hear the discussion. Then the argument cooled down, and the topic centered on the explanation of the Principle and the value of the blessing.

She explained the Principle to him: from the purpose of creation to the value of the blessing and the coming of True Parents; how God fulfills His will through the True Parents; that Jesus' role was not to die on the cross but to realize a central family; that spirit people suffer a lot in the spirit world because they are not on the earth at this time; that before the arrival of True Parents they (spirit people) had not understood God's pain and Jesus' role; and also the long time during which God had prepared so that He could educate a people.

In tears, she asked him to follow True Parents, to study the Principle. She told him that Jesus is with True Parents, and that the Archbishop's ancestors were pushing him to realize unity between Christianity and True Parents. He asked her how he was to deal with his many commitments, and she answered that the top priority was True Parents.

When I opened my eyes, his face was incredibly bright, as if light were emanating from his skin. He was not tired, but, rather, looked relaxed and happy to have listened to these words. Then he started questioning the value of his position in the Vatican, because each individual must unite with God through the Messiah, and True Parents are bringing this world to God through the restoration of humanity. The returning Messiah forms the first original family and sets the foundation for the beginning of the Kingdom of Heaven on earth and in heaven.

He was very happy and confirmed that it was indeed St. Catherine who was giving the messages. He said she had promised him she would always stay close to him, help and support him, but that he had to take responsibility for the restoration of the Vatican and the unity between Christianity and the True Parents.

Before leaving, I asked him to sign one book of mine about St. Catherine, and he wrote "To Catherine: may the Lord bless and be with you."

After this experience, he talked with her on several occasions before going on a special forty-day seminar in America [after which Father invited him for a day of fishing together. - Ed.]

One of the actual messages the Archbishop received from St. Catherine through our sister

December 1, 1999

How much suffering is in your heart and how many tears you are shedding Monsignor I am always close to you in the moments you need the most. I promised to help you and I am doing it. Close to you there is your spiritual tribe, and your family is supporting you. They have met True Parents and they are working so that they (True Parents) may be victorious.

You have given so much. Whoever has knocked at your door has always received words of comfort and help. You have helped so many people, and so many people have helped you. If you reflect back on your life you have surely given much. Now, is a very special time, but it is a time when you can grow internally.

Jesus did not have to die on the cross. God's original plan was for him to get married and build the first family in which Heavenly Father could feel at home, but it did not work out like that. Now, with the True Parents, God's original plan is being fulfilled, and you must be part of it. You must help True Parents in this special time. You have been prepared for something great. Victory will come. Please, unite your heart with Heavenly Father's through the True Parents. Your foundation of the New Testament must now find completion in the Completed Testament.

The blessing was God's original plan. The Ceremony is the external aspect. You know what is now left of Jesus' spirit. The foundation of love no longer exists. Please, help those who are closest to you to change and witness to True Parents. You will be blessed by God for eternity. You feel our support and we listen to your prayers. We can see you when you ask God, "What shall I do? Show me the way." True Parents are the only way of salvation for the whole of humankind. We can think about a lot of material positions or prestige, but you know that those things end quickly. Nothing of that goes to the spirit world. Only your heart will be with you for eternity, and you have given so much love. Please, bring your spiritual growth to completion with God's will and not with the will of external positions. Use your spiritual potential to make True Parents victorious in this nation. We [the good spirit world] will always be with you. Please, accept these words that are coming from our hearts.

Monsignor, you are blessed by Heavenly Father. Jesus has embraced you so much, but he is now following True Parents. Please follow God's will too according to the new dispensation centered upon True Parents.

May Heavenly Father give you His eternal blessing through the love of True Parents. I am Catherine. I know you have been waiting for this message. Please, receive all my support and the support of the spirit world that is witnessing to the True Parents and to Heavenly Father's love."