

Job Opportunity in Nepal: College Principal

Robert Kittel
January 10, 2014

Application for College Principal.

The FFWPU (Nepal) has the possibility to open one of the leading school/colleges in Nepal. The funding can be easily arranged. There is an experienced Ambassador for Peace at the helm — who has successfully launched six colleges in Kathmandu, and the FFWPU has the political position to quickly get through the legal hurdles.

There is an eager audience of students and parents who will pay for quality education. The college will be set up in Chitwan, Nepal. Chitwan is nicknamed the ‘medical capital of Nepal’. This is because so many medical institutions and hospitals are located in this city. At present, the doctors send their children to India for studies. But if quality education were available locally, they would much prefer to keep their families together. This is an opportunity to set up a first-class educational institution.

Chitwan is geographically the center of this beautiful Himalayan nation. It is located at the cross-roads between Kathmandu (Nepal’s capital) and India to the south. Chitwan is also a major tourist attraction having elephant safaris and breeding farms, canoeing through alligator habitats, and cultural entertainment.

Chitwan has one of the most stable and successful FFWPU centers. The FFWPU city leaders are a Nepalese-Japanese couple who built their own home which they use as the center. Currently, six young female members from Japan are living and working there.

To make this college initiative work, an experienced English-speaking principal is needed. Ideally this person should be from the US, England or the Philippines. Others will be considered.

Pay will be nearly double the salary of a member of parliament. And all housing and accommodations will be covered too.

Those interested please submit your resume/CV to Dr. Robert S. Kittel.