food for thought

I've Hurt Someone's Heart

Recently, I was made aware that I had caused someone to feel hurt, judged and misunderstood. It was not my intention and maybe what I had said was taken out of context. But the reality was, I had hurt someone's heart. To be honest, my initial reaction was a bit defensive but if I have learned one thing in all my training to be a relationship coach and educator and communicating with those I care about, it is what I need and want to heal relationships. To do that, I cannot stay in a place where I am self-justifying or seeing things from my point of view. I need to shift my focus to finding a way to reconnect and rebuild trust and understanding. For many of us, it is challenging to say that I am sorry that I hurt you and ask, "Can we talk about it?"
