

WFWP Russia Inspires Students Through Values-Based Education

Olga Vakulinsky
May 18, 2026

On May 11 and May 18, 2026, WFWP Russia conducted educational programs at two public schools in Moscow, addressing important topics related to character development and healthy relationships.

On May 11, WFWP Russia President Olga Vakulinskaya, together with Daniela Gritsyk, a young WFWP volunteer and graduate of the Young Lecturers Education Program, presented a lecture to sixth-grade students on the consequences of using offensive language. The students listened attentively and actively participated in the discussion. Many expressed their determination to avoid using harmful words and to treat others with greater kindness, love, and respect. The class teacher warmly welcomed the initiative and expressed a desire for future cooperation with WFWP.

On May 18, WFWP representatives delivered a lecture entitled "True Love Is Worth Waiting For" to students in grades 8 through 11. The presentation focused on the value of pure love, personal responsibility, and preparation for future marriage and family life. Both teachers and students responded positively to the program. In their reflections, many students shared that they had gained a deeper understanding of the importance of waiting for a future spouse and building a strong foundation for lasting relationships and marriage.

These educational programs provided meaningful opportunities to encourage positive values, respectful behavior, and thoughtful decision-making among young people.